PANAMA (AP)—The government closed high schools in Panama City today in an effort to prevent the spread of student violence at the University of Panama.

About 200 high school students joined some 50 striking extremist university students Wednesday in barricading corridors and nailing classroom doors shut to prevent nonstriking students from attending classes at the university.

East Germans Name General

BERLIN (UPI)—Communist East Germany today appointed its own East Berlin military commandant to fill the spot vacated when the Soviet Union abolished its Berlin military headquarters.

ALLIES REFUSE RECOGNITION

WASHINGTON (AP)—A state department spokesman said today the United States has no intention of recognizing the Communist East German regime or "any administrative entities" of it.

Press Officer Joseph W. Reap made this statement when reporters asked what the U.S. attitude is in view of the reported replacement of the Russian commandant in East Berlin with an East German general.

Reap said a U.S.-British-French statement expected to be issued later will "reflect our attitude" on this latest move in Berlin. "Any changes like that do not affect Western rights and Soviet responsibilities in Berlin," Reap said.

'Occupation Outlived Its Day'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio described as a clumsy trick today Western efforts to continue the four-power command in Berlin.

In a home service commentary, the broadcast said the Russian decision to abolish its commandant marks "a new step toward normalizing the situation in Berlin and strengthening peace in Europe—a step which is more than timely and extremely necessary."

"It is altogether high time to put an end to the remnants of the occupation regime in Germany. If now the American, British and French military commandants try to make a show of the continued existence of a four-power 'commandatura,' this is only a rather clumsy trick."

"It is a patent attempt to preserve the occupation regime, which has outlived its day... and in this way to cover up the transformation of the front line city into a NATO military base."

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill, discharged from hospital to his London home three days ago, is "pleading" to be allowed to visit his country estate, it was learned today.

One of his assistants said: "He keeps pleading with his doctors to allow him to go to his country home, but they have advised a few days rest here first."

U.S. Senate Backs Aid For Lumber

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate, by voice vote, today approved a limited program to aid the ailing lumber industry.

The Senate passed a bill to promote the sale of domestically produced lumber—softwood and hardwood—in the United States and abroad through research on lumber production and marketing.

Under the terms of the bill, the commerce department would receive 50 per cent of the gross receipts from the duties collected on lumber, floorings, moldings and plywood.

In 1961, considered a standard year, this amount would have totalled about $7,350,000.

Dief Urged to Attend ECM 'Little Summit'

By ALAN HARVEY
LONDON (CP)—Australia and New Zealand today were reported seeking Canadian support for a "little summit" meeting to precede the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers opening Sept. 10.

Specifically, Prime Ministers Menzies of Australia and Holyoake of New Zealand were said to be urging Prime Minister Diefenbaker to move forward his scheduled arrival date in London to facilitate a tripartite meeting.

It was understood here that Diefenbaker planned to reach London Sept. 8. With the usual preconference formalities, this would leave little time for any lengthy talks with Menzies and Holyoake.

The Canada-Australia-New Zealand parity would presumably be designed to synchronize Market discussions expected to dominate the full conference of prime ministers. All three countries are worried about the conditions of British membership of the European Economic Community.

LIKELY COOL

The suggestion of a "little summit" is unlikely to meet with any great favor in Whitehall.

Any thought that the three premiers were "synchronizing their watches" in advance of the official session would, it is felt, merely add to British difficulties.

Ever since Britain launched her bid to get into ECM a little more than a year ago, the government has sought to steer delicately between its desire for entry and its concern to obtain trading safeguards for the Commonwealth countries, particularly Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Negotiations for British entry broke off in apparent stalemate in Brussels early this month, but ministers are still hopeful that a way can be found to reconcile Commonwealth and European interests.

New Gov't Offices Stormed

ALGIERS (UPI)—A howling, screaming mob of more than 3,000 demonstrators swept through Algiers and invaded the government headquarters building today demanding an end to the Evian truce agreements with France which ended Algeria's seven-year-old civil war.

The single cry that rose from thousands of throats was "March 19 to the gallows." March 19, 1962, was the date of the signing of the accords at Evian, France, which ended French rule in Algeria and gave this country its independence.

But the agreement also set up a provisional executive and called for elections within a certain time. It was followed by weeks of struggle among warring political factions while the country's economy fell into chaos.

WANT ACTION

One of the older demonstrators in today's surge on the building which houses the powers currently administering the country told newsmen: "We've had enough words. Now we want action. We want bread, we want work and somewhere to live."

"I spent five years in jail under colonialism and that did not put me in any mood to undergo such disappointments as I have done since July 1."

The mob swept past the scene of the May 13 revolt in Algiers that brought President Charles de Gaulle back to power four years ago and surged into the government building. Police hastily slammed the big glass doors and stood behind them.

They turned back the mob with fire hoses.

POWER STRUGGLE

Other crowds of demonstrators remained in the Boulevard de Lattre de Tassigny by the other entrance to the building, which stands as the dominating structure of Algiers central square called the forum.

Today's demonstrations came as a result of the struggle for power between the political bureau, controlled by strongman vice-premier Ahmed Ben Bella, and the council of the fourth military district, the guerrilla force which pledged itself to be "guardian of the revolution" until a national assembly is elected.

Canadian Metal Firms Mentioned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two Canadian metals firms probably will be brought into a senate subcommittee's investigation of the bulging U.S. nickel stockpile, it was revealed today.

R. C. Coburn, chief subcommittee counsel, said public hearings probably will be held on U.S. government contracts negotiated with Falconbridge Ltd. and the International Nickel Co.

It also was learned that two more high officials in the Eisenhower administration may be involved in the broadening investigation. They are John Hay Whitney, one-time ambassador to Great Britain, and Robert B. Anderson, who succeeded George M. Humphrey as treasury secretary under Eisenhower.

Centennial Flashback...

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862
AUG. 23
HMS Hecate returned from transporting the 100 settlers to the Cowichan, and reported they had been safely landed, and the Indians seemed satisfied for a gift amounting to a pair of blankets each, for which they surrendered the land, except for village sites and potato patches. The settlers were divided into three groups, one going to Shawnigan, another to Somenos and the third to Quamichan.

On the way back from Cowichan, the Hecate stopped at Sansum Narrows, where Governor Douglas went ashore and inspected the copper mines. Mr. Smith, the manager, gave the governor several specimens of rich copper ores.

The question of making roads to the suburbs passable in winter is expected to be a leading item on the agenda of the first meeting of town council.

IF HE COMES TO UN

JFK Ready To Meet Nikita Again

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy, who once professed a dislike for summit conferences without prior assurances that they would bear fruit, has hinted he would like to confer with Soviet Premier Khrushchev if Khrushchev comes to the United Nations this fall.

At the same time, Kennedy threw a wallop at the self-esteem of Americans, warning that the United States is well behind Russia in the space race and may stay behind for years before catching up and possibly moving ahead by the end of the 1960s.

"Anybody who attempts to suggest that we are not behind misleads the American people," said the president.

"We are well behind but we are making a tremendous effort," Kennedy said in referring to the space race during Wednesday's press conference.

"This country is making a vast effort which is going to be much bigger next year and the years to come and represents a very heavy burden upon us all. But we might as well recognize that we are behind now and we are going to be for awhile."

The United States currently is spending about $2,400,000,000 a year in civilian and $1,500,000,000 a year in military space programs. Kennedy said he didn't know what military advantage Russia may have gained with its superior rockets and ships "but it is very possible that there will develop military significance and it is for that reason that the U.S. military program is being carried on at $1,500,000,000."

Kennedy's reference to Khrushchev came amid rumors that the Soviet leader might attend the fall sessions of the UN.

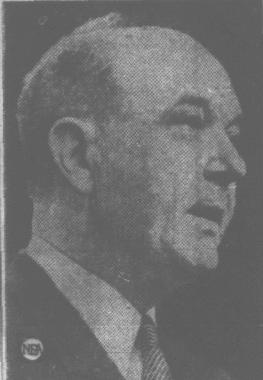

Kennedy said he didn't know whether Khrushchev will make the trip, but "of course, if he did come, I would hope I would have a chance to talk with him."

Usually Kennedy brushes off all suggestions of another summit encounter such as the one in Vienna more than a year ago which failed to melt the cold war. Kennedy has been saying summit meetings should bear the hope of success and should be held only after successful negotiations at lower levels.

WANTS TO TALK
But the alacrity with which he responded to the question of a possible meeting with Khrushchev seemed to indicate the president wants another talk with the Soviet leader on the tense Berlin issue and other troubles.

Closer to home, Kennedy approved a Senate subcommittee's investigation of profits on stockpiling of $8,000,000,000 in strategic materials.

The president said and repeated that extremely large profits were made by the Hanna mining company with little risk to the firm, and he could understand the desire of some witnesses "to limit the investigation by charging it is an attack on President Eisenhower, but I think the Congress ought to do its job."

SURPRISE VISIT

Day-long discussions with Canadian leaders will be held by U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Ottawa Friday. He will meet Prime Minister Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Green. The visit was hastily arranged when it was discovered Rusk would spend part of his vacation in Canada.

CARRIERS OF POTENTIAL DEATH

Plastic Bottles For Gas Blasted

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Fire authorities warned today that plastic gasoline containers are carriers of potential death and destruction.

Provincial Fire Marshal Basil Nixon appealed for a halt to the manufacture of these "enticing but highly dangerous" bottles. He told 103 B.C. fire chiefs at their 31st annual fire college that though his department has no control over the manufacture of the plastic containers, every department and hardware store has been asked to take them off their shelves.

Chief Dick Sowden of Richmond told of a 20-month-old boy who pulled a plastic gas container off a shelf. The gas poured over him from a loose cap and a pilot light in the basement of the home where he was set fire to the spilled gas.

"The container melted to a mere pancake," said the chief. "If it had been a metal container some of the liquid would have been kept inside and the fire would not have been as intense."

The youngster burned to death. Assistant chief W. F. Stevenson of Quesnel said the containers look very good but they are highly dangerous.

The chiefs agreed that plastic containers—as well as glass bottles subject to breakage—should be banned as gas containers. The fire marshal, they said, should consider recommending regulations to create approved containers.

Fire Marshal Nixon said this would be difficult in view of the vast areas, including wilderness where gas bottles are carried.

Rocket Fuel Explosion Kills Three

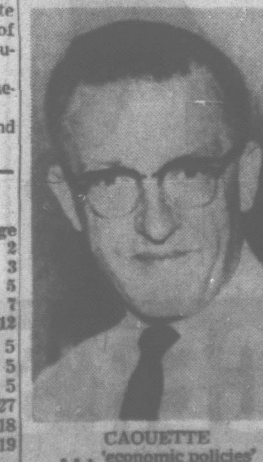

BACCHUS, Utah (AP)—Three men were killed and three injured today when a rocket-fuel-curing building blew up at the big Hercules Powder Company missile and rocket complex here.

R. G. Sailer, assistant works manager, said an undetermined number of 40-pound charges of a propellant being developed for use in experimental motors were in the building.

He said no one works in the curing building and the six men killed and injured were hastily arranged when it was discovered Rusk would spend part of his vacation in Canada.

'SPEAKING FOR HIMSELF,' SAYS THOMPSON

(Times News Services)
MONTREAL—A remark by deputy Social Credit leader Real Caouette that Mussolini and Hitler were his political idols touched off a flap across the country today.

Mr. Caouette's Sacred cohorts were obviously embarrassed; other political leaders wasted no time in jumping on the statement.

In an article by Helen Pilote in the current issue of Le Magazine McLean, Mr. Caouette was asked:

"Who are your political heroes of history?"

He replied "Mussolini and Hitler" and added:

"Fascism, like socialism and Social Credit seeks the liberty of the individual. I admire Mussolini's quality as leader and I regret that he was a Fascist. I admire in Hitler his economic reforms and I consider that he brought his people out of misery. I regret that he employed for war instead of for peace the ideas which he had."

In an interview Wednesday after the story had broken Mr. Caouette attempted to tone down his remarks.

Mr. Caouette said that when he refers to Hitler and Mussolini as his political heroes he thinks only of their economic policies during the prewar depression years.

"As for their dictatorial struggles and their racial struggles they have never been an example for me," he added.

Mr. Caouette said the magazine did not quote his complete reply to the question.

"During the depression years," he said, "while we in Canada were in economic misery, these men brought prosperity to their countries."

"There is no question for me of admiring their racial policies. The extermination of Jews, for example, was anti-Christian. There is no question of following such policies."

National Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said today that Mr. Caouette was "speaking entirely for himself" when BRADFORD, England—A battle over nudity between the British Arts Council and the Bradford Art Gallery ended today in surrender by the gallery and the 21 persons who complained about three paintings hung here for an exhibition.

The battle began Monday when the chairman of the gallery's committee ordered three paintings removed from the exhibits because of complaints about their "indecenty."

The British Arts Council, a state-supported body promoting the arts, staged the showing. It ordered the paintings put back or the exhibition would be cancelled.

Gallery committee chairman Horace Hird refused. But today his committee failed to back him up and by a nine-to-five vote decided to put the paintings back and apologize to the arts council.

Committee members also refused to accept Hird's resignation.

CINCINNATI—Kenneth Deiters, 32, was fined $30 in traffic court after being stopped for driving a car with only three tires. The tireless wheel, police said, had left a groove in the street. The vehicle also had three bald tires, a shattered windshield and faulty brakes. Deiters, charged with damaging a city street and operating an unroadworthy vehicle, told a judge Wednesday he drove because he didn't want to take a bus to work.

MASERU, Basutoland — Constantine Bereng Seeiso Moshoeahe II, 24, paramount chief, married Miss Tabitha Masentle Mojela today in a Roman Catholic ceremony that tribesmen celebrated as Basutoland's wedding of the century.

A loud whinny, a cry of affection in imitation of a Basuto pony, sounded from the crowd when the Oxford-educated bridegroom showed up at the Cathedral of Our Lady of Victories for the two-hour rites.

Basuto tribesmen, wearing blankets and conical straw hats, gathered from far and wide for three days of celebration.

Cattle carcasses were hacked to pieces with lumber-jack axes for barbecues.

Authorities in the British protectorate issued an elaborate list of instructions for the guidance of the Seeiso's herd-riding subjects who resemble Mongolian herdsmen.

One item suggested that horses be left on the road or in parks because "no horses will be allowed in the cathedral."

BENSON, Ariz.—About 50 members of a religious sect have left their homes in this southern Arizona town and taken refuge in underground bomb shelters.

They were last seen after a Sunday meeting. Police Chief Russell Milner said they have gone into the shelters. Two years ago, about 80 members of the Full Gospel Assembly said they had received a divine warning that a nuclear war soon would destroy the world.

They went into shelters but emerged 42 days later, saying God had assured them the danger was past.

"They were very close-mouthed about the underground move this time; they gave us no warning," said Chief Milner.

SARNIA, Ont.—A group of Sarnia schoolboys, afraid a strike by Sarnia electricians will interrupt their studies this fall, have formed a picket line to protest the situation. Seven students from Central Collegiate Wednesday paraded in front of three contracting firms where electricians have pickets.

The strike has brought work on a $1,200,000 addition to Central almost to a standstill. Classes are to begin Sept. 4.

Douglas Dyer, 17, a Grade 13 student who picketed with his twin brother, Elliott, said the delay on the addition likely will disrupt the working schedule. The other students involved are also in senior grades.

Complicated Manoeuvres Marked Pole Rendezvous

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two U.S. nuclear-powered submarines have carried out a historic rendezvous at the North Pole.

The rendezvous, announced by President Kennedy at his news conference Wednesday, was accomplished Aug. 2 by the Skate and the Seadragon, both of which had made previous underwater history in the Arctic.

With the Skate entering Polar waters from the Atlantic and the Seadragon from the Pacific, the 2,600-ton submarines engaged in complicated electronic-controlled manoeuvres in the pitch black under the ice cap before their meeting.

After they had established communications over underwater telephones, the navy said, the submarines "proceeded in company to the point where surfacing was accomplished through a small opening in the ice."

Ceremonial parties including color guards were landed on the ice from each ship, and official greetings and insignia were exchanged.

"Finally crew members were given the opportunity to visit each other, and to take a walk around the top of the world," the navy said.

Although the Soviets have claimed their submarines have entered the Arctic, there is no evidence that Russian submarines ever have reached the North Pole.

American military leaders believe Russia may have as many as 10 nuclear-powered subs, compared to 26 in the U.S. fleet. The United States also has launched but not yet commissioned 10 others and has more than a score under construction.

The feat has military significance because it brought the subs within missile-firing range of Soviet territory.

Former Jail Inmate Paid Big Damages

An Oakalla prisoner burned in a gasoline explosion at a Chilliwack forestry camp was awarded $12,766.95 compensation by the B.C. cabinet this week.

Award of special damages was made to Daniel Williams, who suffered 40 per cent disability of his right hand—$11,000 general damages, $817 special damages and $949.95 costs of a court action.

B.C. Supreme Court had found jail guard Edward W. Prokosh responsible for the injury, which happened as fuel was being taken from a tanker.

The cabinet order denies any liability on the part of the Crown, acknowledging that Williams had no lawful entitlement to relief from the Crown.

AMERICAN FLYER Allan Lawrence Pope, sentenced to death by an Indonesian military court for fighting with rebels there in 1958, has been secretly released and returned to the U.S. The 33-year-old Pope was reported to have been freed July 2 as part of a general political amnesty.

BODY IDENTIFIED

Sadistic Slayer Hunted in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Police hunted for fresh evidence today to solve the sadistic slaying of a 44-year-old Ottawa woman, whose nude and slashed body was discovered in a gully in Rockcliffe Park village. The body was positively identified today as Mrs. Jean Bond, 44, by the husband, an Ottawa tailor.

Ontario Provincial Police said she also had previously gone under the name of Jean Briere and Jeanne Liboron in Montreal.

They said the killing may be the work of a sadist and advanced the theory that the woman willingly accompanied her killer into the bush and was stabbed with a knife after a violent argument.

County coroner Dr. John Thomson said an autopsy showed death was caused by a stab wound through the heart.

"There were three wounds in the region of the heart and one in the abdomen," he told reporters.

The body was found about 10 a.m. Wednesday in a gully about 30 feet from the home of W. E. D. Halliday, registrar of the federal cabinet, and a few hundred yards from the entrance to the residence of the United States ambassador.

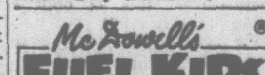

Rites Friday For Nurse, First War Veteran

Mrs. Nora Rose, a Victoria nurse who earned the 1914-15 Star in France during the First World War, died in Mount St. Mary's Hospital Wednesday after a lengthy illness.

A graduate of the Jubilee Hospital Nursing School here, Mrs. Rose went overseas as a nurse in 1914 and served in France, Salonika, England and Canada.

She is survived by her husband, David A. Rose, at home at 450 Grange Road; a son, Prof. D. J. Rose in Cambridge, Mass.; a sister, Mrs. J. S. Gill in Saanich; a brother, Frank, in Vancouver; four grandchildren and nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held in McCall Brothers funeral chapel, Johnson and Vancouver, on Friday at 3.30 p.m. followed by cremation.

A fragment of land was added to Goldstream Park this week, correcting a long-wrong survey of Indian reservation at the head of Finlayson Arm.

It measures 306 feet at the north end, 409 feet at the south end and is 1,021 feet long, lying east of the road that climbs Mount Finlayson.

A department of lands spokesman said the parcel became available when an old reservation survey error was corrected.

De Gaulle Escaped Death 'by Inches'

Three Years Peace

VANCOUVER (CP)—Industrial peace appears assured in British Columbia for the next three years.

Industry and labor spokesmen said Wednesday all the major unions have signed wage contracts for two, three, and in some cases, four years.

Industry officials said this means business can plan ahead more confidently than in the past.

An official of the city's board of trade said long-term contracts mean orders can be taken and filled at the quoted prices.

This, he said, has been a problem in the construction industry, particularly, where road contractors have seen profits disappear under new labor agreements.

Industrial concerns in Eastern Canada and even Europe had recognized that labor in B.C. had been pretty militant and had often led the march to higher pay.

As a result, he said, industry has been reluctant to locate in British Columbia without some reasonable assurance of co-operation from labor.

The long-term wage pacts, he said, would give businessmen some of the assurance that has been lacking.

Major unions that have settled contracts for the next two or three years include the Pulp and Sulphite Workers, Mine, Mill, Steelworkers, Packing-house workers, all the building trades unions and the International Woodworkers of America, the province's biggest union.

PARIS (Reuters)—A nation-wide hunt was pressed today for terrorists who ambushed President de Gaulle's car Wednesday night in an assassination attempt that failed by only a fraction.

De Gaulle, 71, escaped uninjured but his car was hit by at least 10 bullets as it sped through a hall of machine-gun fire on the outskirts of Paris. One of the bullets missed him by about two inches.

Police launched an all-out search for the would-be assassins, believed to be linked with the "French Algeria" European terrorist Secret Army Organization.

Within two hours of the attack, police found an abandoned truck which had been stolen, containing two heavy machine-guns used in the assassination attempt.

Police said they believed a similar attempt on de Gaulle, or a rehearsal, was planned for Aug. 8, the last time the president was in Paris.

They also said they had traced the truck to a garage at Joigny, in the Honne area of central France.

The attempt came as de Gaulle was being driven to Villancoubay military airport for a flight to his country home at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises.

Accompanying him were his wife and his son-in-law, Col. Alain de Boissieu, who also escaped uninjured despite the spray of bullets that smashed the rear window, punctured two tires and pitted the body of the presidential car.

Wednesday night's attempt, however, was considered to have brought de Gaulle nearer to death than at any time since he returned to power in France in 1958.

His car was hit by bursts of machine-gun fire from two groups of men separated by about 50 yards on a dimly-lit road near a crossroads four miles from the airport.

De Gaulle's chauffeur, who was driving at high speed, roared through the hall of bullets, stopping only at the entrance of the airfield to permit the president to change to another car.

He flew from the airport as scheduled and arrived safely at Colombey.

Grenades, Bombs Found Near Road

Police said between 120 and 150 rounds of ammunition were fired. Grenades and incendiary bombs also were found along the roadside. They believed about 10 men took part in the attack.

Interior Minister Roger Frey said despite his narrow escape de Gaulle "retained his usual imperturbable calm but I think this time he found it a little close."

Escorting the presidential car were motorcycle policemen and a carload of security men. Two bullets whizzed through the helmet of one motorcycleist but he also miraculously escaped injury.

The attack was the second assassination attempt on de Gaulle within a year. Two other plots against his life also have been uncovered during the last year.

During the delay, the Soviet officer in charge was said to have threatened that all American military traffic on the East German autobahn or in East Berlin would get military escorts if he was forced to take one.

U.S. Messages Remain Secret

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government today refused to make public messages received from the United States about Dr. Robert Soblen on the ground disclosure would harm good diplomatic relations.

The court was handed a note signed by the foreign secretary, Lord Home, which claimed Crown privilege—the right to refuse to divulge information.

The convicted Soviet spy's chief defence counsel, Elwyn Jones, earlier had subpoenaed Home Secretary Henry Brooke to produce the messages.

The court was formally hearing an application by the convicted Soviet spy for a writ of habeas corpus requiring authorities to give reasons for his detention in London's Brixton Prison.

Attorney-General Sir John Hobson today began his rebuttal of Jones, who had spoken for a total of seven hours.

Jones argued, to no avail, that Crown privilege could not be claimed in habeas corpus proceedings.

He completed his arguments on the second day of resumed High Court proceedings on Britain's bid to deport the 61-year-old psychiatrist to the United States, where he faces a life sentence for spying for Russia.

Hobson said Soblen, suffering from leukemia, was not in immediate danger.

The Government's Saviour

THE FAITHFUL CONSERVATIVE newspapers of eastern Canada have greeted the arrival of Mr. Wallace McCutcheon in the Senate as a masterstroke by Mr. Diefenbaker. One might suppose, from the cheers of The Toronto Telegram and The Ottawa Journal, for example, that another Churchill had appeared to save the nation.

It is to be hoped that Mr. McCutcheon can do useful work, after his long experience in private business, but to compare him with the late C. D. Howe, as his friends are doing, surely is to arouse excessive expectations. The next few months will settle that question but there is another.

If Mr. McCutcheon is to be in fact the economic and financial brain of the government, if he is to have even the chance of doing anything important, why is he in the Senate?

The Senate supplied one Canadian prime minister, J. J. C. Abbott, Macdonald's immediate and brief successor, but in modern times no government has allowed a senator to direct a department of state. Quite rightly, it is accepted in all parties that only men elected by the people, not men appointed by the prime minister, shall have real ministerial responsibility.

Mr. McCutcheon has none, directly at any rate. He says himself that if a ministry of economic affairs is to be established, as seems probable, a House of Commons man should administer it. But the obviously inspired stories in the Conservative press indicate that, without a portfolio or perhaps visible power, Mr. McCutcheon will largely direct the government's economic policies and even be the de facto minister of finance while Mr. Nowlan is only a figurehead.

Apart from the feelings of the popular Mr. Nowlan, this would be an impossible arrangement constitutionally. No House of Commons, especially the present chamber of minorities, will accept policy flowing from the non-elected Senate, however it may be disguised.

If Mr. Diefenbaker really relies on the advice of Mr. McCutcheon he should insist that his colleague seek election to the Commons, as no doubt could be arranged in some safe Conservative seat. Mr. McCutcheon indicates that he has no such intention, is remarkably mysterious about his new duties but thinks the government's program of austerity is working well.

But quite apart from these considerations, it is a monstrous infringement of the constitution for Mr. Diefenbaker to appoint a senator when he not only has no mandate from the people but lacks any vote of confidence from Parliament. He has no right under existing conditions to make such an appointment.

The way things are going, however, Mr. McCutcheon may remain in the Senate for life but he is unlikely to remain long in the government since the government is unlikely to remain long in office. The saviour of the Conservative Party seems to have arrived too late. Mr. E. P. Taylor's vast Argus Corporation can expect its manager back without any serious delay.

Fifty Years of Age

VICTORIANS ARE HAPPY TO pause in their centennial celebrations to extend a birthday greeting to Esquimalt. The municipality now observes the fiftieth anniversary of its incorporation.

The history of the area, however, is almost as old as Victoria's, for the fine harbor attracted ships in the early days and many of the vessels that delivered passengers and freight to Victoria found anchor off Esquimalt. It was there, too, that the Royal Navy established its shore facilities, which over the years have become the spreading RCN community of today.

As Reeve Wurtele, himself a retired navy man, observes: "The sea is all around us and it has shaped the lives of all who have made their home here."

The Times echoes the sentiments of all of Esquimalt's neighbors when it wishes the municipality a successful celebration, and prosperity throughout the coming years.

Ah Wilderness

THE OTHER DAY AT LOS Banos, California, President Kennedy used the occasion of a sod-breaking ceremony for the San Luis Reservoir to call for a strong conservation program.

Some of the points he emphasized—extensive research to devise an inexpensive way of converting sea water to fresh water, for instance—have little more than academic interest for people of this province. Others are of direct concern.

The president could find here extensive support for his advocacy of a strong wilderness bill to hold back civilization from public lands that "should retain their primeval grandeur." In British Columbia we have vast areas of that nature—many of them reserved for parks. But, in the opinion of many informed people, our laws covering them lack adequate strength to defend them against commercial invasion.

In the years ahead, with the province attracting more and more settlers, these wilderness areas are going to shrink, or be transformed. Some will become logged-over lands. Some will be centres of hydro development. Some will be areas of settlement.

At the moment there seems to be an ample supply of untouched real estate for all these purposes, and there is an apparent element of protection to save large regions for recreation. Perhaps, however, the legislators should determine to what extent that protection is more apparent than actual. The Butte Lake story of recent memory indicates the manner in which primary recreational areas can be subjugated to demands for water storage and power development. Nor are timber stands in parks automatically inviolate because they are in parks.

When he spoke in California, President Kennedy conceivably addressed an audience more familiar with the impact civilization can have on wilderness parks than would be the case if he spoke in British Columbia, where there are still vast areas of wilderness. At the same time, his call for strong laws might justifiably encourage some conservationists here to look a little more closely at the strength of some of our legislation and tighten up some of the slackness which makes parkland seem more fully protected than it actually is.

Backfire In Helsinki

THEORETICALLY, THE Eighth World Youth and Student Festival foisted on an unwilling Helsinki by its Communist directors was to have fostered "peace and friendship." In actuality it did anything but.

Finnish youth staged anti-festival riots on the eve of the opening parade. Finnish adults turned thumbs down on incoming delegates and teen-agers shouted "Down with communism! Down with the festival! Long live free Finland."

Nor did the discord arise only from citizens of the nation coerced into being the venue for the event. It sprang up among delegates who protested the festival's manipulation as a pro-communist cold war weapon and who objected strongly to the bonds placed upon free exchange of ideas.

Some delegates packed up and left in disgust before the sessions were completed. Others came away disillusioned—among them parties from the new Asian and African countries.

By no stretch of imagination can the festival be defined as an unqualified success. It at least showed, however, that the youth of the world assembled in Helsinki even for an event of such questionable character cannot be herded and bulldozed into acquiescence when the communists crack the whips. The young people preserve a healthy determination to exercise the right to disagree.

Below the Waves

A HALF-COLUMN OF TYPE in a recent issue was headed: "No Danger of Default of B.C. Bonds." The story quoted Premier Bennett and an investment firm in pointing out that a major portion of the province's contingent liabilities is self-liquidating and that there is no danger of any of the obligations not being paid off on time. The tenor of the article was that there is a firm foundation under British Columbia's debts whether they are called that or not.

It must have been sheer coincidence that the news item below it, dealing with an error in a coastal marine chart, was headed: "The Rock That Wasn't."

"I'm toying with the idea of buying some of those recordings and becoming a doctor's wife in four weeks..."

FROM WASHINGTON

As They Told a Bell in Hiroshima

IN HIROSHIMA, a few days ago, a girl named Junko Matsuoka tolled the "peace bell" during ceremonies reminding the world of another day in August 17 summers ago.

The atomic age is the only one Miss Matsuoka has known, for she was but a few months old when the flames and horror came and took the lives of her parents and 78,000 others. During the recent ceremonies at Hiroshima, the names of those who have died in the past year from the effects of that blast 17 years ago were placed inside a stone memorial arch. There were 125 names on the list.

Not unrelated to the tolling of the bell in Hiroshima was the explosion by the Soviet Union of an atomic weapon on the island of Novaya Zemlya, the start of a new test series. The first blast was estimated at equal to 40,000,000 tons of TNT. The bomb that exploded in Hiroshima was equal to 20,000 tons.

In Geneva, this August, the test-ban negotiators for East and West are sparring again, as they have since 1953. They have not made much progress. On Johnston Island, the United States is repairing a launching pad that may be used to set off a high-altitude nuclear blast.

Against this background, it might be an appropriate time to discuss missiles, for there much progress has been made. The bomb that killed Miss Matsuoka's parents was dropped by a lumbering plane called the "Enola Gay." Today, both sides have missiles.

Must Be Seen

Yet, a missile in the abstract does not mean much. It must be seen to be believed. A TV screen fails to convey its awesomeness. But how many people have ever actually seen an intercontinental ballistic missile?

Last spring, on a trip to California, those of us who cover the White House had a chance to see the latest and best in United States missiles, during a tour by President Kennedy of Vandenberg Air Force Base.

It was late in the afternoon when we arrived, and the sun was hanging low over the Pacific. The sky was clear, and the sparkling water lapped against the shore. There, by the peaceful sea, Vandenberg sprawls for thousands of acres.

It does not, at first, look like a missile base. The undulating green hills roll gently upward from the sea, almost barren of trees. It might be a golf course, or an English heath—except for, here and there, a glimpse of a strange-looking blockhouse, a slab of concrete, or a gantry which give the place an unearthly feeling, as if an outsider had suddenly landed on the moon.

The visit began with the firing of an Atlas missile for the President. The voice of the man giving the countdown floated downwind so that he could be clearly heard. "Three—two—one—blast-off—"

On Target

The huge missile, bigger than a locomotive, which had only a second before stood gleaming like a silver bullet in the sun, belched flame and slowly roared upward. It arched out to sea, overhead, spewing white fire, and then was gone. Moments later, the Air Force announced that the Atlas had landed on target, thousands of miles away, near the Pacific island of Kwajalein.

But only when we had gone further, to a windy hilltop overlooking the sea, did the meaning of Vandenberg become clear. There, we were permitted to inspect the silos that house the Minuteman, a solidfuel, second generation ICBM, which is considered almost invulnerable because it rises from the ground as a Polaris rises from the sea.

The missilemen, the new elite corps of the Air Force, were there—blue-uniformed colonels in hard, white hats. They explained that Minutemen were being installed in similar underground silos at bases all over the country.

The silo, really a monster hole in the ground, a giant gun barrel embedded in the earth, looked to be 20 feet across. Its yawning mouth was like no other sight in this world. For out of its jaws could rise a hurtling mountain of metal, tipped with an atomic warhead. In 15 minutes, more or less, it could land in Kiev, Leningrad, or Moscow, to snuff out the lives of perhaps a million men, women, and children.

Titan Complex

After that we saw the Titan complex. Titans, like Minutemen, are buried below ground. They must be elevated to be fired. The double doors of the great concrete hatches open slowly, and the missile rises between them, reaching for the heavens.

In front of the blockhouse, clean-cut young technicians in spotless white coveralls lined up for inspection. They might have been working at the corner service station, except that they were the firing team for an ICBM.

As the sun slipped lower into the ocean and the light faded into dusk, the wind grew cold and cut through to the bone. But it was no more chilling than the experience of an afternoon at Vandenberg.

There is only one thing even more horrendous than gazing into the black maw of a Minuteman silo. That is the knowledge that they are absolutely necessary.

For, somewhere in the vast Russian heartland, east of the Aral Sea at Tyura Tam, we know, and elsewhere, there are Soviet bases with similar missiles poised to destroy New York, Chicago and Detroit, and its men, women and children.

That is the measure of how far man has progressed in the year of our Lord, 1962. Therefore, ask not for whom the bell tolls in August at Hiroshima.

FROM NEW YORK

An American Looks at British Democracy

LIVE IN LONDON for three years, as this reporter has done, and it begins to look as though presidents and prime ministers are pretty much the same, except maybe for drooping eyelids and boyish grins. Constitutional niceties aside, a democracy is a democracy and it's all a question of who has the votes.

But it isn't. Even in the first few days of a visit to the Great PX Out Yonder, the differences point up the fact that for all his apparent power, Harold Macmillan lives in a pretty fragile political situation and although his party has a bigger majority than John F. Kennedy's he is far more likely to sink without trace in the next year.

Lack of Finesse

To the returned non-resident (who gets $10 duty-free exemption for gifts, which is like offering peanut butter to a thirsty man), this seems at first a country of great big cars, all of them dirty, damaged, and rusting, huge stores where nothing costs less than $1 but everything is available, and a certain lack of finesse about grubbing for tips.

It is also a country where the natives are worried about what the President is doing to the press, where a pride of Kennedy's seems to have cast a collective spell over the national imagination, and where, even so, the chief executive of the United States couldn't get a stick of chewing gum out of Congress without promising someone a postmastership in Idaho.

(Furthermore, to put a whole paragraph in parenthesis, most Europeans were astounded at the administration's inability to get the medicare program passed after a public relations campaign by the American Medical Association that seemed deliberately calculated to rank doctors with the Gadarene swine.)

Still, Kennedy is the president and a strong one. He may yet increase his majority in Congress. The country has yet to feel the full force of his personality. Not even in the darkest recesses of the National Republican Club is there a wild-eyed fanatic who believes he is going to disappear from the political scene.

In Britain, on the other hand, the situation is almost exactly reversed. People become worried about what the press is doing to Mr. Macmillan, while, in his very definition as prime minister, he can get any program he wants through the House of Commons.

When he wanted a solid showing on the last census vote, the party whips went so far as to order home a Conservative member who had just arrived in the United States. The hapless wanderer forked out $2,000 of his own money to vote the way the prime minister wanted, and greater devotion hath no politician.

And when there was a suspicion that his government wasn't looking young enough or energetic enough, Mr. Macmillan sat down at the head of the long table in his ornate and empty cabinet room, looked at a list of his ministers on a big, cream-colored sheet of paper, and in two days worked out the largest peacetime change in government ordered by any prime minister this century.

This is the outward show. However, three weeks ago, at the close of the parliamentary session, a private meeting of influential Conservative backbenchers was also exclusively occupied over after-dinner drinks with Mr. Macmillan's successor and with the delicious thrill of wondering just how long the old boy could keep it up.

Party's Will

For a British prime minister does not depend on the country to keep him in power. He survives at the will of the party.

No one has yet told the story of what happened when Anthony Eden resigned in the hectic days that followed the invasion of Suez. But a powerful and energetic group of backbenchers united then to freeze R. A. Butler out of what looked to be a sure succession and installed Harold Macmillan. Since then the party internal stability, votes in the country at large, and a comfortable sense of world importance.

But just as in those West African tribes where democracy consists of the right to depose the leader when he gets feeble or unpopular enough, democracy inside the Tory party consists of a quiet coup against the prime minister.

Mr. Macmillan is not a young man and at the drop of a hat he will explain what a killing physical pace is required of a government minister. He is leading a party that is seriously disaffected, reflecting an electorate that doesn't know exactly what it wants but seems sure it doesn't want what the Conservatives are offering today.

The chances are that if the Common Market negotiations go sour (especially following a commitment to join), so will Mr. Macmillan. He could hand over to someone else in the cabinet and allow a junior to lead the party into an uncertain future. If the economic situation sours, ditto. If the government makes any major internal mistakes, ditto.

Until the day he goes, Mr. Macmillan remains all-powerful within his own house, despite the talk of a veto power now vested in his three leading cabinet members. He could well hang on to see how the next election turns out. But when he goes, it will be with little warning and with complete finality. And it could well be within a year.

ROME:

No Urge To Run Away

By NINETTA JUCKER

A REQUEST to write a piece on the lighter side of Italian life tempted me to write back: "No such thing here. Regards—"

Is it possible, I wondered, that people in Britain still fail to realize there is no lighter side to life on the Continent? Twenty years of Fascist despotism have been followed here by nearly two decades of earnest and successful, often spineless, endeavor to build an industrial democracy.

Incidentally it is the English obsession with lightness that makes it difficult for them to break into the Common Market. How often have I heard Italian Eurocrats—and others—exclaim: "We cannot have the English coming here and spoiling things with their sense of humor!" The Eurocrats are a tough breed. Hard work and argument they thrive on, but ridicule, they know, can be fatal.

Round the Clock

Where would you look for lightness in Italy, a country whose business executives work 18 hours a day, including Saturday, and take their—male—secretaries home on Sundays to check their estimates? Where mothers keep watch on their daughters' honor round the clock, and pass their evenings doing their children's prep from elementary school right through to baccaureat?

Where schoolboys spend the summer holidays cramming to "repair" in September the examinations they failed in June? Where pedestrians are constantly knocked down on pedestrian crossings and even a dog cannot roam the streets unmuzzled lest he meet the municipal dog-snatcher and be whisked off to the town kennel.

What lighter side can there be to life in a country where television ballerinas wear black tights against a dark background?

Where the newspapers annually publish the names of the 300 or 400 citizens in the top income bracket and compare their declared incomes with the amounts for which they compounded with the taxation authority, as: "Prince Alessandro Torlonia: declared income $6,000; ascertained income $40,000."

An Italian humorist—one of the last of the breed—once said his nation's motto is: "I have a family." The maxim of modern Italy is: "We never relax."

Not that Italians fail to count their blessings. They know that the 20,000,000 foreign visitors who profane their ancient cities in unseemly garb by cooling their feet in the fountains, represent $300,000,000 of foreign currency and are a staple factor of the economic "miracle."

These figures, incidentally, help to explain why Italian living has no lighter side. If 20,000,000 foreigners came to Italy last year (the figure this year must be close on 25,000,000) the reason is not only that 20,000,000 people—a sizeable fraction of the population of Northwest Europe are looking for something here, but that they are also running away from something at home: gray skies undoubtedly, but other things as well.

Stay-at-Homes

Conversely, out of 52,000,000 Italians, a bare 20,000 to 30,000 take their holidays abroad. The reason is no longer purely economic. Italians do not feel the urge to run away.

They are not subject to the terrible Northern schizophrenia which splits the individual—male or female—between his working life and his leisure life, often to the point at which he cannot distinguish which of the two contains his ultimate reality.

In Italy there is virtually no leisure, the day's work being so divided that it fills the entire day. With the utmost difficulty some business firms are trying to introduce a northern time-table, and an "English" weekend, but the obstacles are almost as great as those involved in introducing the metric system into Britain.

It means changing the style of living, and this is difficult because Italians do not really feel the need to escape into leisure. Many of them have hobbies, because this is a new foreign fashion, but few are obsessed by the typically northern yearning for an "outside interest."

In this country, where few people are lonely and hardly any are bored, it is life itself, the working life, with its cares and worries, its joys and frustrations, which is accepted as the real thing, the only thing worth having.

That is why Italians have no escape literature, and make no escape films. But they like these things, just as the British like the Mediterranean sun, and since they do not produce them they import them, mainly from Britain.

Gerald Waring

...REPORTING

OTTAWA—For four years the personal antagonism between John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson, an antagonism that ran far short of mutual detestation, spent its substance in a static political situation.

Diefenbaker was incomparably the top man on this particular totem pole. He was the master of Parliament with the biggest majority in history, the master of his party who was able, by his amazing political achievements, to command the subservience even of those few Tory MPs who could wish him personally no good.

In contrast, Pearson was the abjectly defeated leader, deprecated even in his own party by a strong element which moaned that the Liberals should have picked Paul Martin.

Nor was Diefenbaker in any way magnanimous to his vanquished foe. It was almost a matter of personal affront to him that Pearson should be known as Canada's greatest diplomat and International peace-maker, with the Nobel Peace Prize to prove it. His public references to Pearson's diplomatic achievements were belittling, and never once did he ask Pearson's advice privately on international problems vital to Canada's interests.

The results of the June 18 election have greatly altered the position of the two men relative to one another, and relative to their parties and the Canadian people. And when Parliament meets next month they will face each other for the first time on approximately equal terms.

Pearson's impressive campaign, and the fact that only the perhaps ephemeral Social Credit phenomenon in Quebec robbed him of the prime ministership, have pretty well stilled those Grits who were disgruntled Martin men. Pearson's prestige is now at a high point, although perhaps higher with fellow Liberal politicians than with the people generally. The former recognize what the Liberal leader achieved, while the latter are still bemused by the fact that Diefenbaker is still prime minister.

The converse is true with Diefenbaker. By still being PM, however tenuously, he "won" the election. But his victory was so much a defeat, in comparison with 1958, that his prestige inside his party has plummeted. Many of the Tory MPs who won believe they did so in spite of Diefenbaker. And a great many of those who lost blame not only Diefenbaker, but also Conservative National Director Allister Grosart, who of course was Diefenbaker's choice for the job.

The effect of these altered fortunes is bound to show on party morale, and on esprit de corps and discipline in the two parliamentary groups. The advantage that will accrue to the Liberals will be most important in light of the practical certainty of another election next year, if indeed not before Christmas.

The changed relative strengths of the two leaders reflects the fact that the sine qua non of politics is the ability to win elections. King had that ability, and St. Laurent had it. Drew didn't have it, nor did Bracken.

Lester Pearson has proven that he can win elections, and John Diefenbaker that he can lose them. The confrontations of these two men, now that the Commons recognizes these facts, will be something to see. If they sold tickets, Parliament could make money this fall instead of just spending it.

LESAGE REMAINS SILENT

New Power Takeover Reports in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—The politically charged issue of nationalizing Quebec's private power producers may be heading for a decision some two years after Rene Lesage, provincial natural resources minister, began his personal campaign in favor of the multi-million dollar step.

Reports circulating in Quebec say the matter is to be discussed formally by the cabinet of Premier Jean Lesage this September, for what is believed to be the first time.

A resources department source indicated the reports "are founded on some amount of fact."

Mr. Lesage himself continues non-committal. Asked about nationalization in a pre-recorded television press conference, released Tuesday night, he said he has nothing to add to what he has already said in the legislature.

In the assembly he has said only that the government is dicker with two small companies whose owners are reported interested in selling. A general nationalization policy would be announced at the proper time and place.

Mr. Lesage began preaching nationalization up and down the province a few months after the Liberal party took office in July, 1960. It is reported he had Mr. Lesage's tacit approval.

"One thing is known," said a government source. "Mr. Lesage is in favor in principle, given the right circumstances and conditions."

The source said people close to the premier have heard him privately express himself in favor.

Socreds and NDP 'Avoiding Vote'

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson attacked the stand of the Social Credit and New Democratic parties against an early election Wednesday, saying they appear to be looking for ways and means of keeping the Conservatives in office.

Mr. Pearson issued a statement commenting on a press conference given here Tuesday by T. C. Douglas at which the NDP leader said the general public would resent the opposition groups precipitating an election.

WON'T FORCE VOTE

Only last week, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said his group would not force an election this winter.

"I have noted with interest," Mr. Pearson said, "the press conference at which Mr. Douglas expressed the wish of the NDP to avoid an early election, an attitude which could contribute to keeping the present minority government in office."

"In recent weeks, both the NDP and Social Credit parties have joined us in condemning the Conservative government for its bungling of the nation's business. They now seem to be looking for ways of keeping that government in office."

"The position of the Liberal party remains unchanged. We are convinced that a new Liberal government with the support of the people and with a clear majority of the members of Parliament is essential to the renewal of Canada's progress."

Boys Snatch Purse

Two youths, accompanied by a girl, snatched a purse containing $2 from Miss J. Martin, 622 Rupert Street, while she was walking in Beacon Hill Park Tuesday night.

Miss Martin told police the boys, aged about 15, had brown curly hair and were wearing blue trousers and brown shirts. She said the girl was about 14, blonde, and wearing blue slacks.

SATELLITE PLANNED BY FRANCE

PARIS (UPI)—France announced Wednesday night that it plans to join the space race.

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte said France intends to launch a 150-pound satellite into orbit in March, 1965. He said this satellite will be followed almost immediately by others three or four times as large.

France has exploded some nuclear devices, but is far behind the United States, Russia and Britain in the nuclear field.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Pink in the Left Wing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Anyone who has been more than three blocks from home in the past five years undoubtedly is aware of the fantastic boom in motel construction.

If you build a better motel, the world doesn't have to beat a path to your door. The government will provide a six-lane divided highway.

Motels, I hardly need point out, have been becoming increasingly luxurious, palatial and super de luxe, not to mention expensive to stay in.

Any day now I expect to read that a motel has just opened with hot and cold swimming pools, restaurants, night clubs, cocktail lounges, theatres and the other familiar accoutrements of modern roadside lodges.

Only the builders discover that they forgot to provide a place for the guests to sleep. What got me on this subject was a press release I received heralding the opening this fall of the Skyline Inn, a motel located on Capital Hill and designed to appeal primarily to politicians.

Figuring that this might be the ultimate ultimate, I arranged to have a chat with Frederick Fox, a noted Broadway stage set designer who served as an architectural and decorative consultant for the project.

It soon became apparent that, whatever his other talents, Fox doesn't know much about designing motels for politicians. At least his plans didn't fit my concept of what a motel for politicians should be like.

The motel I have in mind would have three types of rooms. One, located in the right wing, would have birch furniture of the Louis XIV period.

The second, in the left wing, would be done in pink. The third, accessible only from the rear entrance, would be for the exclusive use of back-door spenders.

In addition to temperature controls, each room would have a helium outlet for inflating trial balloons. Another knob would adjust the smoke content to the density suitable for selecting candidates.

There would, of course, be swaggar sticks available for pointing with pride, and a picture window from which to view with alarm.

Other features would include built-in lobbyists, a night deposit service for campaign contributors, steam-shovels for digging up dirt about opponents and electronic mud slingers.

The dining room, rather than having tables and booths, would serve meals from a public trough, and the swimming pool would be equipped with a floating stable for changing horses in mid-stream.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Alternative to Staking Plants

Showers have caused many of our taller perennials to bend earthwards with the added weight of rain-drops, but this is not too damaging providing a strong wind does not develop. If it does, damage can be severe.

Staking and tying securely is usually prescribed as antidote, but most of us dislike this job so much we would rather do without tall plants.

However, there is a practice that was followed by many an old-time head gardener in charge of gardens exposed to sea breezes in summer and fall. It amounted to keeping the tall plants from growing tall.

REMOVE TIPS

This was done by removing the growing tip from each stem when the plants were some 18 inches high in most instances, which would be in early to mid-summer.

The exact height and time depend on the plant concerned, a little experimenting being needed to gain experience, and some adjusting to suit the particular season.

The removal of the growing tip stopped the stems from elongating and encouraged the development of side growths, and when these came into flower the effect was often more pleasing than the plants' natural habit.

Of course, flowering is delayed a little, but not unduly since the removal of the tip causes the side growths to develop rapidly.

The practice can be used with good effect on the taller fall perennials such as the perennial asters (Michaelmas Daisies) and the solidagos (golden-rod), two fall favorites which suffer badly in rain and wind.

It is something worth trying on a plant or two next year.

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—An RCAF Golden Hawk's Sabre jet travelling at 450 miles an hour struck an iron pole here Wednesday in full view of 30,000 spectators at an air show.

Imports Establish Post-War Mark

OTTAWA (CP)—Imports rose to a record value for any post-war first quarter in the first three months of this year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The record figure of $1,470,300,000 was achieved partly as a result of devaluation of the Canadian dollar in terms of United States funds and was only slightly below the estimate for the quarter issued by the bureau May 31.

First-quarter import values were up 14.7 per cent from a year earlier when they totalled $1,281,500,000.

The average price level of imports in the first quarter of this year was about five per cent higher than in the corresponding quarter of 1961 and the physical volume was nine per cent greater.

March imports were valued at $30,200,000, up 15.7 per cent from March, 1961.

Imports rose by 18.2 per cent from the United States and in lesser degrees from Venezuela, Japan, France, Italy, The Netherlands and India during the first quarter compared with the corresponding period last year. Declines were reported in imports from Britain, West Germany and Saudi Arabia.

By commodities, imports were up for non-farm machinery, auto parts, aircraft and aircraft parts, electrical apparatus, crude petroleum, engines, boilers and autos, fruits and cotton products.

Imports from the U.S. rose to $1,057,108,000 in the quarter from $894,453,000 a year earlier, due partly to $45,000,000 purchases of military aircraft.

Imports from Britain slipped to $137,347,000 from $141,724,000. Imports from all countries other than Britain and the U.S. rose 12.5 per cent to $275,824,000.

Satellite 'Revives'

LONDON (Reuters)—The British earth satellite Ariel, after being silent since Sunday, has started sending intermittent signals again, a science ministry spokesman said today. It was believed Ariel's solar batteries, charged by energy from the sun, might have been damaged by radiation from the high-level U.S. A-test.

Tariff Pattern Protested

OTTAWA (CP)—Communist China has renewed its old complaint about the valuation base used by the Canadian customs officers in levying tariffs on Chinese textiles. It has the effect of pricing Communist goods out of the Canadian market.

Latest in the long history of such protests came during the recent visit of a four-member Chinese delegation which met with Agriculture Minister Hamilton to discuss grain purchases. Informants say the government is unlikely to do anything about the situation.

Imported textiles are subject to a percentage tariff based, under the Customs Act, on "the fair market value in the country of origin."

In the case of Communist countries the revenue department maintains that it cannot establish a "fair market value" on the basis of state-controlled prices. So it takes the price of a "comparable nation."

For Chinese textiles, the department uses the value of similar goods on the United States market. This results in high values and thus high tariffs. An item which Red China may sell for 10 cents a yard could come under a $1.50 valuation, for example. And with a 10-per-cent tariff, the charge would be 15 cents instead of one.

Key to the Chinese complaint is the fact that Hong Kong and Japanese textiles are admitted here on Hong Kong and Japanese valuations, much lower than U.S. rates.

Last year Red China sold $1,024,000 worth of textiles to Canada, a small fraction of Hong Kong and Japanese sales here.

Quota Hiked on Japan Flatware

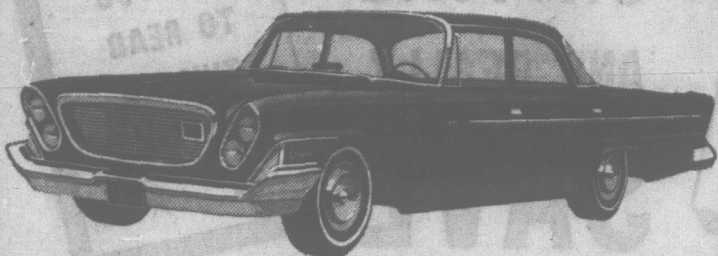

OTTAWA (CP)—An increase in exports to Canada of stainless steel table flatware from Japan for the 1962 calendar year has been agreed upon by the two countries, Finance Minister Nowlan announced Wednesday. The quota on such exports has been set at 720,000 dozen pieces, up from last year's quota of 642,000 which included a special shipment for 1961 only of 42,000 dozen pieces for the premium trade. Shipments in 1960 totalled 1,150,000 dozen pieces.

Esquimalt Praises Sung At 50th Birthday Party

'Family' Gathering

Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay actually reached full agreement Wednesday night.

They were united in congratulating Esquimalt on the 50th anniversary of its incorporation and they joined forces in presenting the municipality with a solid marble desk set inscribed with their good wishes.

"This is an expression of our high regard for the reeve and councillors of Esquimalt," said Mayor R. B. Wilson of Victoria, as he with Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich and Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay jointly presented the gift to Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

The presentation took place at a rousing family-style party formally described as a banquet—in Esquimalt's spacious new Sports Centre.

130 Pioneers There

Guests of honor were Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes, leading Victoria citizens and some 130 pioneer residents of the municipality.

One of the oldest was 77-year-old Mrs. Andrew (Isobel) Stewart, born at Esquimalt in the days when it was a British naval establishment connected with Victoria by a footpath.

Another was Edward Logan, 84, born at the old Esquimalt navy yard.

The old-timers stood to receive the applause of some 330 guests at the banquet and 800 more who occupied the public galleries for the high-spirited entertainment.

Men, women and children from many parts of Greater Victoria responded to a general invitation to the entertainment.

City Library Staff to Get $10 Increase

Victoria Public Library staff has benefited by an average $10 per month salary increase as a result of a retroactive agreement between the board and staff association.

Agreement has been reached on all points but one prior to appointment of a conciliation officer whose task was to set probationary rates for beginners.

It was agreed that high school graduates should start at $175 a month for the first year. People with a bachelor's degree or more than a year's business experience will start at the same rate for a three-month probationary period.

The latter category would then rise to $194 per month.

This classification, based on city hall's "clerk, grade one," has a base salary of about $165 per month now, or four per cent below the comparable job at city hall.

The 55-member staff is divided into clerical and professional employees. Professionals, or those with a degree in librarianship, number 10 in the Victoria library staff and get between $345 and $385 per month.

The one-year agreement is effective from Jan. 1.

REEVE A. C. WURTELE receives joint gift

Earlier, Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes and the head table guests were piped into the sports centre by Piper Gordon Ross and took their places at a candlelit table covered with gold foil and ornamented with flowers of many colors.

The platform behind was draped with Esquimalt's colors of blue and gold offsetting a replica of its coat-of-arms created in 1956.

A buzz of reminiscent chatter accompanied the tasty chicken dinner.

"Where were you born?" and "Do you remember old —?" were standard questions. One lady said she once lived in the house that is now the maritime museum, but didn't want to give her name—or age.

7-Man Team

These merry exchanges were interrupted by a toast to the Queen and the introduction of head table guests by the chairman, Councillor G. K. Sammon.

In an address of welcome to the guests, Reeve Wurtele said:

"In Esquimalt we work as a seven-man team and this is the way the municipalities of Greater Victoria should work."

He paid tribute to former reeves of the township, including two who were present—Thomas Hadfield (1944-46) and Magistrate Albert I. Thomas (1947-51).

There was a special welcome, too, for Mrs. James Elrick, widow of Reeve Elrick (1927-31) and Mrs. E. J. Read, widow of Lt.-Col. Read, who was reeve in 1947.

Early Struggles

Reeve Wurtele recalled the difficult postwar years when Reeve Hadfield and his council contended with a serious housing shortage, and he told of Esquimalt's earlier struggles.

"If we can do our work half as well as our pioneers did we shall have succeeded," he said.

The reeve thanked Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich for their handsome gift. He said it would have an honored place at the head of the council chamber.

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes congratulated Esquimalt on its jubilee, "the delicious meal you have served us" and the production of a historical booklet which was presented to the guests and is to be sold to the public.

Sentimental Link

"We owe a great debt of gratitude to the pioneers who laid the foundations for this prosperous municipality," he said.

Mr. Pearkes recalled it was just 37 years to the day when he arrived in Esquimalt and stayed with Mrs. Fitzherbert Bullen.

"Two days later I was married to my wife in St. Paul's Garrison Church. So I have a strong sentimental link with this municipality."

"May the next 50 years be even more prosperous than the last 50 have been."

Forces Represented

Councillor Sammon, addressing the pioneers, said:

"May Almighty God grant that you may enjoy the fruits of your labor for many more years."

Fred Usher was MC for the entertainment, given by his Hometowners, the Florence Clough Dancers, Adeline Duncan Dancers, Barney Potts from Vancouver, Miss Nina Rae, the Will Deacon Junior Square Dancers, Andre and Barbara, acrobats, and Terry Cain.

The armed services were represented by Air Commodore G. G. Truscott, RCAF; Major R. B. Mainprize, Canadian Army, and Commodore J. A. Charles, RCN.

Rail Car Rips Into Truck

EDMONTON (CP)—Passengers screamed in terror Wednesday night as their CNR diesel rail car slammed into a three-ton truck and careened off the tracks into a rail switch and railway crossing sign six miles northeast of here.

The truck driver was killed and 17 of the diesel's 35 passengers were injured, none seriously.

Tracks were torn from their ties and the truck's crumpled cab was snapped from its chassis and wedged beneath the rail car, which came to rest at a 45-degree tilt. RCMP said the dead man, whose name they withheld, was found in a ditch beside the tracks. They said he was from another country and they were trying to get the news to his relatives. The truck he drove bore no company name.

HELP THE INJURED

A bus was used to help ambulances bring the injured, including a Roman Catholic nun, to hospitals in Edmonton.

The rail car left Edmonton at 5:40 p.m. on its daily run to the town of St. Paul, 100 miles northeast of here. The accident happened about 6 p.m. at a dirt-road crossing two miles north of the Oliver provincial mental institute.

The spot, called Charbonneau Siding, was the scene of a similar collision in 1951. In that accident a steam locomotive en route from St. Paul to Edmonton smashed into a west-bound truck, killing the driver.

There is a five-mile obstructed view from the crossing where the rail car, with a three-man crew, struck the east-bound truck Wednesday

Workers Leave Turney Field; Onus on Eagles

Victoria will have only one team in the B.C. senior baseball championships at Royal Athletic Park over the Labor Day weekend.

FINAL AVERAGES

Worth Double Value

Art Worth did his part for Transport Workers during the past season, according to official Victoria Amateur Baseball League statistics.

Worth not only topped the league in batting, with a .390 average representing 39 hits in exactly 100 trips to the plate, but also chalked up a 6-1 record on the mound, tops for his team.

Only George Brice of Eagles (13-6) and Keith Todd of Naval Vets (9-2) topped Worth in the pitching department. Nobody bettered him at the plate.

Mike Hodge checked in with the second-best batting average, a healthy .353. He was also second in the slugging department, batting in 38 runs with four homers, three triples and 10 doubles. Slugging champ was Norm Curran, who had 46 runs batted in with seven homers, four triples and 10 doubles.

Moss 'Just Trying to Get Off Hook'

The controversy surrounding a kidney injury to Don Clark of the Eastern Football Conference Montreal Alouettes goes 'round and 'round. Where it will stop nobody knows.

But Barry O'Brien, president of the Ottawa Rough Riders, has stated that he is protesting to commissioner Syd Halter about remarks about his club made by Alouette coach Perry Moss.

Moss had said that Clark's injury resulted from a "deliberate attempt" by Ottawa tackle Giles Archambault to get him out of the game last week.

Said O'Brien: "Archambault is one of the cleanest and most gentlemanly players in the league. I would suggest that Moss is trying to get off the hook with the public for his loss."

He added that he had talked with Halter, who told him that Moss had protested but that as far as the commissioner was concerned the officials had refereed the game in a competent manner and that he had seen no deliberate attempt to injure.

Said Archambault: "I certainly didn't do it on purpose."

MacLeod Fires Par 72 As Pro Field Tunes Up

TORONTO (CP)—A field of 614 sets out today in the first round of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship with full knowledge that the Mississauga course par of 72 can be soundly licked.

Alvie Thompson, assistant pro at the Toronto Northwood Club, showed the way Wednesday in a pro-amateur celebrity tournament with a 65, equalling the course record. Nine other pros broke par.

Thompson's spectacular play brought him and his partner, Wally Crouter of Toronto radio station CFRE, the day's honors at best-ball with a score of 63.

The next best pro-am score was of 65 made by three teams. They were Al Balding and amateur Jim Fuller of Toronto, Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Eddie Black of Toronto, and Vic DiMarco and amateur Hugh Borthwick of Toronto.

LEONARD HAS A 65. Balding fired a 66 as runner-up to Thompson in medal score and Leonard, defending champion for the CPGA title, had 68.

Ron MacLeod of Victoria, head pro at Jasper Park Lodge, scored a par-matching 72.

Borthwick, a member of the Mississauga club, scored a hole in one at the par 132-yard 10th with his No. 8 iron.

Thompson's seven-under-par equalled the competitive record for Mississauga set in 1955 by U.S. pro Chandler Harper. Thompson is a former assistant pro at Vancouver Marine Drive. He is a teaching pro at Northwood under head pro Bill Mawhinney, also formerly of Vancouver.

The pro-amateur show attracted a field of more than 200. Low man among the sports stars was Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens of the NHL with 74. Singer George Murray had 75.

Thompson won $125 in the total of $500 prize money for pros in Wednesday's play.

GOLF SCHOOL

By SAM SNEAD

AVOID WEAK GRIP. Your chances of getting through the sand, as the illustration shows, if your grip is weak, are mighty slim. Even if you get through the sand, the club will undoubtedly have turned in your hand, ruining your direction.

Because you need extra power in this sand shot to swing the clubhead through the sand, your grip must certainly be firm.

Also, make sure you keep your arms extended in making this shot. Don't unconsciously pull them up as the clubhead enters the sand. You must keep them extended, as in the drawing, all the way through the swing.

IN BOXING Montreal's Bob Cleroux received a jolt when he was informed that the NBA has upheld the Ontario Boxing Commission suspension he received in September of 1961 due to contractual mix-ups. He has boxed three times in NBA territory since that time due to a misunderstanding over the limits of the Ontario ruling, and the NBA upheld the indefinite suspension despite pleas by the Canadian Boxing Commission that Cleroux's difficulties have now been solved.

This was not the only strange action taken by the NBA (short for National Box-

Redlegs Get Rich By Bucking Odds

Berra's Blast Carries Yanks To Important Win

By Associated Press

Picking Philadelphia Phillies to beat Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Mets to beat San Francisco Giants on the same evening is something like drawing to an inside straight in poker.

Usually the house gets rich on such odds. However, Cincinnati Reds picked up the chips Wednesday night.

The Reds, making a determined stab at repeating as National League champions, used Eddie Kasko's 10th-inning grand-slam homer to beat Chicago Cubs 9-5 while the league-leading Dodgers and second-place Giants took their lumps from a couple of also-rans.

The stumbling Dodgers lost 5-1 to Philadelphia as Chris Short pitched a three-hitter while San Francisco was edged 5-4 by the Mets, with reliever Ken MacKenzie (5-4) of Gore Bay, Ont., picking up the victory.

It was the eighth loss in 11 starts for the Dodgers. The Giants dropped six in their last seven games. Cincinnati, on the other hand, has won 15 of its last 18 and has made up six games on the Dodgers in 13 days.

LA RETAINS MARGIN

The Reds trail Los Angeles by only four games—the closest they have been since the second week of the season—and are only half a game behind San Francisco. Los Angeles retains a 3½-game margin over San Francisco.

Pittsburgh Pirates got three-hit pitching from Tom Sturdivant in blanking Houston Colts 3-0 and Milwaukee Braves rallied to beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-4.

The Reds got support from an unexpected source in their victory over the Cubs. Kasko, who faces possible loss of his starting assignment with the return of Gene Freese from the injured list, had hit only one home run this season before he unloaded with three men on base. It was his 15th homer in six major league seasons.

YANKS TRIUMPH

Meanwhile, over in the American League, the other Los Angeles team took it on the chin, but the Angels gave the mighty New York Yankees a run for their money.

And it took none other than Yogi Berra to administer the coup de grace in a come-from-behind 4-1 victory.

With an average around .225 and playing just part-time, Yogi came through with a two-run eighth-inning homer that gave the Yanks their victory. It was their second win in a row over the Angels, who have now just about given up the ghost.

In other games, Chicago White Sox edged the Baltimore Orioles, 7-6; Kansas City Athletics beat Boston Red Sox, 4-2; Cleveland Indians topped the Detroit Tigers, 7-3, and Minnesota Twins and Washington Senators played to a 10-inning 8-8 draw.

Winnipeg's Gain

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers have signed 21-year-old Joe Williams, speedy halfback who has been declared scholastically ineligible for football at the University of Iowa.

Ottawa's Good Word Will Send 'Emon Way

OTTAWA (CP)—Decision on a federal grant which would enable the University of British Columbia's 17-member rowing team to compete in the first world rowing championships is expected in "a day or so."

A health department spokesman said today a recommendation on UBC's application for a $15,000 grant must come from the National Fitness Council, a 30-member advisory group set up last year.

The UBC team wants to leave Vancouver by air next Wednesday for Lausanne, Switzerland, where the championships will be held Sept. 6-9.

"The fitness council now has the matter under study and we're expecting to hear from them in a day or so," a spokesman said.

Council members are scattered across the country and it takes some time to collect their views.

The grant would come from a $5,000,000-a-year fund for fitness and amateur sport set up by Parliament late in 1960. It is administered by the health department with grants made on advice from the council.

ARGOS AT WINNIPEG

Starry Lions' End Ready for Ottawa

(Times News Services)

Lineman Dick Fouts suffered a badly-bruised back but he may be able to return to action in time for next Monday's Canadian Football League game in Vancouver against Ottawa Rough Riders, British Columbia Lions said Wednesday.

Fouts, husky defensive end obtained from Toronto Argonauts in an off-season trade, was taken to hospital Tuesday with an injury suffered in a Western Conference game in Calgary Monday.

Extent of the injury wasn't known at that time and it was thought Fouts might be out of action for some time. Examination, however, showed that Fouts' back had been bruised badly, but was not sprained.

INTER-LOCKING GAME

Meanwhile, Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, each in desperate need of a victory, clash in the first game of the inter-locking schedule at Winnipeg tonight.

The winless Toronto club was defeated by Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats in its only two tries this season.

As a result of victories of Saskatchewan Roughriders Monday night, Bombers find themselves in the unusual position of looking up at three teams in the Western Conference standings. And though they have two games in hand, they are on a two-point level with the slow-starting Calgary Stampeders.

Italians Square Off

TORONTO (CP)—In a game billed as the first of a two-game series for the North American Italian soccer championship, Toronto Roma Wednesday night scored a 3-1 victory over Toronto Italia, Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League champions.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Soggy summer weather may be great for lawns and lumberjacks, but it adds up to nothing but trouble for upland game birds.

Effect of our cold, late spring and cool, damp summer are showing up this month as game biologists go about their usual August chores of counting Vancouver Island's grouse population.

All counts are not yet completed, but the picture appears to be plain: Blue grouse broods are smaller than usual, many hatchlings were late and the blues are hanging around in second-growth and "junk" timber.

That means that gunners hitting the hillsides for the opening of another bird-busting season on Sept. 1 can generally expect to be somewhat less successful than they were a year ago. Also, unless things change in a hurry, they probably won't find as many blues as usual in newer, open slash and may have to slog through heavier cover to find the main concentrations of birds.

As in any other season, the experts in the bird-hunting brigade can be expected to find some good shooting. And everybody occasionally gets a chance to heat up gun barrels by running into a pocket of migrating blues. But many of the average gunners, particularly those who have not learned grouse habits, stand a good chance of coming back with skimpy bags.

Population of Young Below Normal

Although a good number of blues arrived at nesting grounds last spring, production of young birds has been below normal. Weather conditions reduced the survival of chicks and also resulted in a large number of late hatchlings.

Biologists have reported that brood sizes this year are averaging about two chicks per hen. In a good year the average is above three. Blue grouse chicks appear to be in two groups—an early hatch of good-sized youngsters and a late hatch of small ones, which will be barely flying when cartridges start popping.

Actually, it is a long way from a gloomy picture. In general, it stacks up as a fair season, but not one of our better ones.

"We are cautiously pessimistic," says chief biologist Don Robinson. "We hope the situation is better than it looks."

Ruffed (willow) grouse have been plagued with the same troubles as the blues, but are better adapted to damp conditions and could be in about the same supply as a year ago.

Apparently near the top of one of their cycles, the willows promise to provide some fine shooting in many areas, better than blues in some places. Working on their side is their preference for heavy cover, which can make hitting the flitting willows a difficult task.

Don't forget that new firearms licences will be required on opening day. They can be obtained at the game branch office, sporting goods stores and department stores. Available with the licences are copies of game regulations.

Band-tailed pigeons come into season along with grouse on Sept. 1.

It was a big night for Gordon Sward at the South Vancouver Island Rangers clubhouse Monday night, when a group of guests viewed a premiere showing of the Optimist-Rangers safety film, "Play It Safe."

Gordon is the man who first suggested such a film back in 1954. An idea, of course, wasn't enough and obtaining the support needed to produce a first-class film was a problem. But the Ranger got all help he needed from Optimist-Ranger Art Mounant and between them they pushed the project through to Monday's successful conclusion, collecting valuable assistance from organizations and individuals along the way.

Without resorting to ugly scenes of persons maimed by firearms or explosives, the interesting, 20-minute color film does a fine job of getting its safety message across to viewers. In story form and narrated by Peter Elkington, it shows many of the dangers connected with outdoors activities—around the home, on the shooting range, in boats and in the field.

Approved for showing in all B.C. schools, the film will be available to organizations interested in promoting safety. Optimist lieutenant-governor William Cathro hopes to have it distributed by at least 2,000 Optimist clubs in this country and in the U.S.

Perhaps the biggest message in the picture is that the teaching of safe habits to youngsters—by words and by example—is a never-ending responsibility of adults. And with another shooting season just around the corner, that could be a point to remember.

"We do not claim that this is the answer to the problem of safety," said Head Ranger Ray Hull, "but if it saves just one life it will be worth the effort."

Most of those attending Monday's showing seemed to believe it will do far more than that.

Shotgunners will have their usual opportunities to tune up shooting eyes before the season opens at skeet and trap shoots this Sunday.

Victoria Gun Club has carded the annual "Pre-Season Ham and Bacon Shoot" at its Albert Head Road grounds Sunday, running from 10 a.m. until evening.

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association will hold its annual skeet championships at Goldstream.

Virtue Cup Team Named

The Victoria team which will compete in the second leg of the inter-city Virtue Cup cricket series has been named by the Victoria and District Association.

Victoria won the first match on Dominion Day. Final match will be played at Brockton Oval in Vancouver on Labor Day, and Victoria needs only a draw to win the cup.

Named to the team were Tom Brierley (captain), Peter Clarke, Peter Josselyn, John Brierley, Keith Bickmore, Dave Cullen, Don Hughes, Gil Ferreira, Jim Richards, Rob Wilson and Wally Tate.

ON OPENING DAY

Kinsmen Fall Fair To Honor Victoria

Opening day of Greater Victoria Kinsmen Club's fall fair will be designated Victoria Day in honor of the city's 100th birthday.

Each of the remaining five days of the agricultural and industrial fair at Esquimalt Sports Arena Sept. 24-29 will honor another segment of the community.

Co-ordinator Jack Phillion said Tuesday will be ladies' day, Wednesday is exhibitors day, Thursday municipal day, Friday armed services day and Saturday children's day.

He said there will be special favors for these people on their respective days.

Part of the idea in reviving the urban fair after a lapse of some 20 years is to culminate the city's centenary and Esquimalt's 50th anniversary of incorporation.

TWO LIVESTOCK SHOWS

There will be two separate livestock shows, the first from Monday to Wednesday, the second from Thursday to Saturday.

Other divisions include horticulture (in which there are some 3,000 entries so far), commercial, hobbies, kitchen crafts, school work, a rabbit show, goat show and sections for canaries and budgies.

Official opening will be by the lieutenant-governor at 8 p.m. Monday.

Crowds totalling 100,000 are expected to attend, for which special parking arrangements are to be made.

Each will be eligible for d-r prizes nightly and a 1963 car for grand door prize.

A fireworks display is planned to cap the week's activities before midnight Saturday.

Meanwhile, organizers seek donations of milk bottles—1,500 of them—to keep flow-ers in for judging.

Belmont Votes On Recreation

Permission to proceed with a $115,000 recreation centre at Belmont Park will be sought from the 2,200 residents of the naval housing area in a ballot Sept. 5 and 6.

A total of 80 per cent of voters must vote "yes" to give planners the go-ahead, based on a $2-per-month levy per family to repay a proposed $65,000 loan from the federal government. A $50,000 grant is also sought.

AUTOPSY was scheduled today in death of Mrs. Dorothy Boehme, 35, wife of Port Orchard, Wash., doctor acquired three months ago of trying to kill her. Mrs. Boehme died in hospital Wednesday and her attending physician attributed death to form of meningitis. Last May Dr. Robert Boehme was charged with injecting an insecticide into his wife's arm.

First of its kind in the United States, the Franklin Institute of Mechanics opened at Philadelphia in 1824.

Veterans Urge Sweepstake

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's oldest veterans' organization will ask the federal government—because it feels the people want it—to establish a system of state-operated sweepstakes.

More than 300 delegates attending the current four-day convention here of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada unanimously passed a resolution Wednesday calling on the government to establish a system of betting on horse racing that would benefit the country's social services.

The group said sweepstakes should be established because millions of dollars are taken out of Canada every year by this scheme to provide benefits for the citizens of other nations.

It also feels that the laws prohibiting lotteries and sweepstakes in Canada are not "conscientiously enforced" because the people don't want them to be, and there are a number of social services in this country that could be financed through the operation of sweepstakes.

SPRAYS, FAGS, DRUGS WORSE THAN FALLOUT?

VANCOUVER (CP)—A University of British Columbia physics professor said Wednesday he worries more about fruit sprays, cigarettes and drugs than he does about nuclear fallout.

Prof. K. L. Erdman, who has conducted fallout level tests here, said in an interview most of the fallout from the United States tests in Nevada does not reach B.C. until it goes around the world.

B.C. had more to fear from Russian nuclear explosions but the danger there could be gauged by the fallout level over China and Japan which got it first.

"But Russia gets the fallout first, so I don't think there's as great danger for us from it as from cigarettes and the stuff they put on Okanagan apples and additives in drugs to soothe our jangled nerves."

"I can't do anything about any of them, so I peel my apples, though I like to eat them with the skins on, but that's all I do."

ONE SHOT, THREE AT LARGE

Murderer Among Escaped Convicts

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Four convicts, including a murderer with a long record of escapes, broke out of the New Mexico penitentiary just south of here Wednesday night.

One shot from a guard's rifle felled one man as he ran past a tower. The other three got away and were still at large.

The wounded convict is Charles Wayne Willmer, 26, of Big Rapids, Mich., who has been in prison since 1959 on a sentence for writing bad checks. He was in serious condition at a hospital here.

The break occurred at 7 p.m. while the prisoners were in a recreation area. They crawled under a 10-foot wire fence, scaled an outer fence, 12 feet high, and fled on foot.

At large were:

Marvin Vaughn, 37, White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., serving life for murder;

Roy E. Ledoux, 26, Duluth, Minn., sentenced May 14, 1962 to one to 10 years for obtaining money with intent to defraud;

John Edward Bostrom, 44, Minneapolis, sentenced May 1, 1962 to one to 10 years for rustling.

900 Join Search For Missing Girl

BEETON, Ont. (CP)—The search for 10-year-old Thomasina Beeton and her abductor Wednesday mushroomed into one of the biggest manhunts Ontario has known.

TV WENT BANG JUST LIKE GUN

A new TV set exploded Monday night adding a touch of realism to a detective show.

Miss K. J. O'Brien, 423 Quebec, was entertaining friends when the set suddenly went dead and started belching smoke.

"I called the fire department, then we rushed the set downstairs. As soon as we got outside the thing blew up."

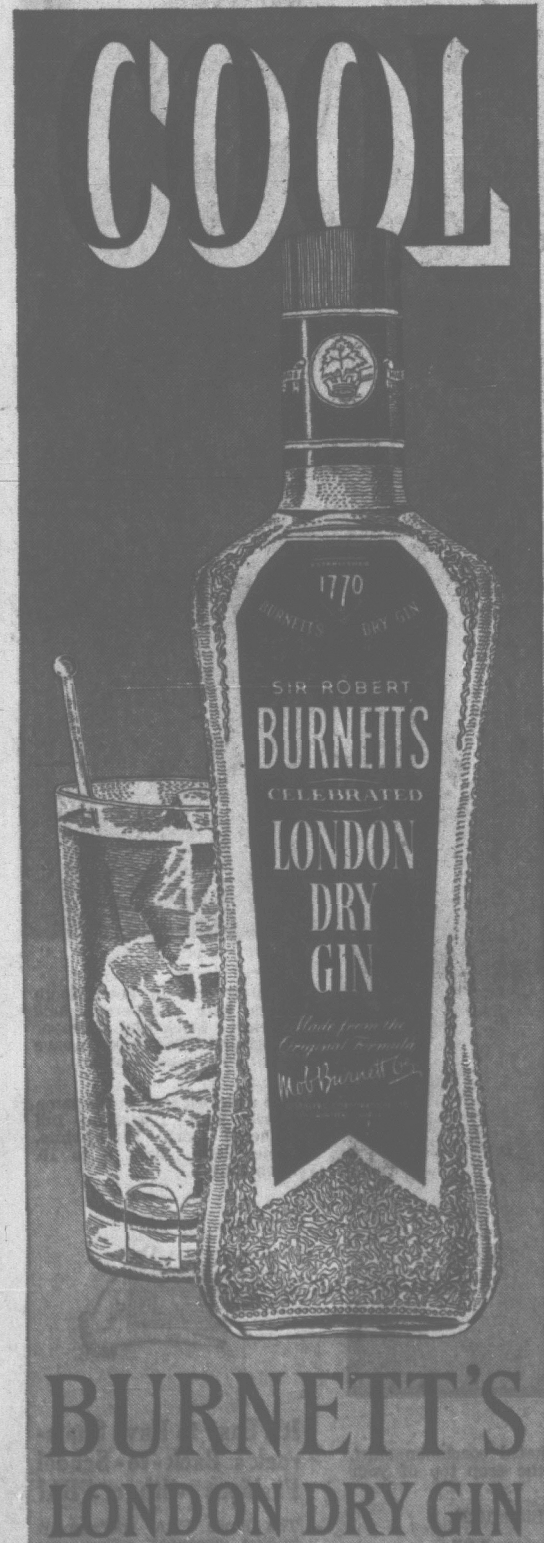

By late afternoon 900 men were either in the search or waiting to join.

Toronto teamsters announced 200 men were available at short notice and Attorney-General Kelso Roberts called in 200 soldiers from Camp Borden, Ont., to join the 500 men already in the hunt.

Hope is fading as police check and recheck every small lead they uncover, so far with no concrete results.

The girl was lured into a car by a man late Sunday as her three-year-old brother Allen looked on from a swimming hole on the farm of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Baker.

The common garter snake has been known to give birth to 78 young in a single litter.

Carton-Plagued Dairy Gives Up

Milky Way Dairy Ltd. of 815 Beckwith, which had been fighting the provincial government since its inception in June, 1959, has given up the struggle.

Henry G. Robinson, manager and one of the company's eight shareholders, said today its routes have been taken over by Island Farms, which also has largely absorbed the small dairy's staff.

"Only the shareholders will lose out, but they will lose everything they invested in the dairy," Mr. Robinson said.

It was founded by eight Saanich dairymen to take advantage of a milk cartoning machine manufactured in the United States for small businesses. Only trouble with the plan was that it produced a 64-ounce carton of milk—two American quarts—instead of the two-quart Canadian measure of 80 ounces.

LEGISLATIVE BLOW

It was on this ground that the carton was condemned by former agriculture minister Newton P. Steacy, and the agriculture department introduced legislation requiring milk to be packaged in multiples of the Canadian quart.

The dairy fought back, and with public indignation on its side, finally won permission to sell milk in the disputed carton.

Other actions, though, were brought against the dairy, potential customers were warned by department of officials not to handle the dairy's products, and no new business was secured.

It was the federal government's austerity program which finally smashed the little co-operative.

Cost of American cartons took a sharp rise because of new taxation, and at the same time manufacture was discontinued in Oregon. This meant cartons would have to be shipped from California, causing an increase in costs to the dairy of $500 per month, and delivery delays.

SUPPLIES FAILED

Additional costs and trouble made it impossible for the operation to continue.

"When we started our business we were assured by a Vancouver source that when six machines were operating in B.C. the cartons would be produced in Vancouver," Mr. Robinson said.

"We had the third machine, and two others were on order, but operators and potential operators chickened out when they heard of our trouble," Mr. Robinson said.

"Now we are stuck with a lot of equipment including the packaging machine, which can't be sold in British Columbia."

"Maybe we should put it in a park and dedicate it to the Social Credit government."

Centennial Stamps Going At Fast Clip

Victorians Wednesday set a record for sale of commemorative stamps in the city when they swamped the post office to buy the Victoria Centennial stamp.

An official of the post office estimated about 40,000 of the stamps were sold, 10,000 within the first hour.

Normal first-day sales are 3,000 to 5,000 here the official said.

In addition, thousands of unofficial first-day covers—specially designed envelopes bearing the stamp on its first day of issue—were mailed from Victoria.

The post office diverted employees from their normal jobs to help sell the stamps and cancel by hand the first-day covers.

The commemorative stamp features a reproduction of the 1861 two-and-a-half penny rose, the first to be issued in B.C. It also bears a design including the legislative buildings and the dogwood.

Canny Collie Cashes in on LCB

ALBERNI—Major is a Border Collie who is unique among dogs.

He brings home money to his mistress, Mrs. Florence Morris, Gertrude Street.

One of his first coups occurred when Mrs. Morris's husband was alive. He was feeling unwell, and asked his wife if she would get some brandy. She didn't have any money at the time and was on her way to borrow some from a neighbor when Major walked in the door with a $20 bill in his mouth.

He once came home with a pouch containing $12, has made several $2 hauls, and on occasion has found $5 and $10 bills. He won't touch silver.

Major's latest feat occurred in the last few days.

While out walking with Mrs. Forrester the four-year-old Collie gave a few barks, got orders from Mrs. Forrester to "pick it up", and gave her a cheque for $150.12, made out to an Oriental.

She is still trying to find the owner.

Mrs. Forrester finally revealed Major's secret for finding money. He hangs around the government liquor store here, where bills often are dropped by patrons as they pocket their change.

2ND OF SERIES

Automation: More Jobs Or Fewer?

EDITORS NOTE: Does automation kill jobs or create new ones? In this story, second of a two-part series, the pros and cons are discussed.

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The way to get full employment fast, says one American industrialist wryly, is to outlaw the wheel. If people had to carry everything on their backs, there would be jobs for all.

That makes as much sense, he says, as talk that automation will recklessly replace men with machines.

This is his facetious entry in the hearty debate raging today over what automation does to jobs.

He and many American economists argue that in the long run, at least, technological change creates far more jobs than it destroys.

Some in recent months have argued back that this reasoning is merely historical. Automation isn't necessarily the same as those other changes, they say.

VIEWS DIFFER

The first 10 years of automation in the United States do not offer evidence mutually acceptable to both parties in the dispute.

The National Association of Manufacturers says automation didn't destroy jobs, but in fact added to them through such new products as color television and certain plastics.

The AFL-CIO speaks of 2,000,000 people added to unemployment rolls between 1953 and 1960.

Looking ahead, many economists support the argument of W. Allen Wallis, president of the University of Rochester and former dean of the School of Business at Chicago University. He says that just as the automobile generated far more jobs than the ones it destroyed in the buggy industry, so will automation changes broaden total job opportunities.

In addition, this thesis continues, making a product more attractive through automation—either in price or in quality—may step up total demand. The resurgence of the coal industry arises in part from lower prices made possible by better machines.

GENERATE JOBS

New products, made feasible by automation, generate jobs where none existed before. The automation industry itself, according to one of its leading spokesmen, John Diebold, involves about $10,000,000,000 a year and hires about 1,000,000 people.

Many have also pointed to the rise in the service industries employment in recent years.

White-collar workers in the U.S. now, for the first time, outnumber their blue-collar counterparts. Between 1953 and 1961, the number of production workers decreased by 1,200,000 while the total in service industries (transportation, finance, sales) grew by 5,000,000.

Even within the manufacturing industry, some 90 per cent of job growth has been in the white-collar fields, a personnel director estimates.

Many have suggested that as jobs are lopped off assembly lines, workers can readily shift into the white-collar and service categories.

RETRAINING NEEDED

Switching workers from one industry to another, however, is a solution that may work better in theory than practice. Big adjustment and retraining programs are needed. Increasing attention is being given to plans to help this transition. Congress this year authorized $435,000,000 to retrain 1,000,000 jobless breadwinners in the next three years.

Many companies — Armour and Company, Kaiser Steel, Campbell Soup — have worked out their own retraining programs.

Many industries have quietly operated continuous up-grading programs. One expert estimates that 75 per cent of U.S. industry has some such program operating more or less constantly.

How effective have these programs been? In-plant upgrading programs, the experts say, have been effective. With others, there have been some big disappointments. In distressed areas, one critic said, retraining merely meant that men had different jobs to be out of.

Argentine Premier Replaces Army Chief

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Jose Maria Guido has replaced the army chief of staff again in another attempt to ease a military struggle for power that has virtually paralyzed Argentina's government. Gen. Bernardino Labayru, reported to be a close supporter of former president Gen. Pedro Aramburu, was called from retirement to take over the army post from Gen. Carlos Turolo.

ARTHUR MAYSE

The learn-while-you-sleep technique currently being researched by one of our Victoria head-shrinkers intrigues me, if only because I don't seem to learn very well in my waking hours. I'm still two units short of completing freshman mathematics. Even before the educators switched the names around, I couldn't tell a dangling participle—if that's how you spell it—from a muted modifier. I don't spell so good, either.

But getting back to learning while you drowse through what our researcher terms the "hour of reverie" in your slumber temple. The gimmick works. I know, because our clock-radio churns into action an hour before its hellish alarm cuts loose to shatter reverie, and you'd be surprised what filters into the subconscious or unconscious during that last precious sixty minutes of shut-eye.

Once I rose with the complete words and sound effects of a song hit titled "My Friend the Witch Doctor" and couldn't get them out of my head all day. I can, in fact, still turn out a pretty fair rendition on demand.

Another time, a Sunday morning, it was an early sermon that left its mark on the slumbering id. We'd meant to shoot some duffer golf, and were puzzled to find ourselves preening and prinking for church.

So I warn you, the process needs watching. Like the plain old unboosted subconscious, it's not one hundred per cent trustworthy.

Anyway, I'm not sure I welcome a planned invasion of those hours of reverie. Much sooner would I waste them fishing a hypothetical trout stream pool by pool, or inheriting a million bucks to be spent only in frivolous pursuits, or planning what we should do with our sunny little alder- and cottonwood flat in the Campbell River country.

Let me point out also that an over-busy subconscious can land one in some awful jackpots.

One friend, now producing words for the television idiot-boards, rose glowing from his own little hour of reverie with a red-hot story notion sizzling in his head.

His lead was on paper when he realized the stuff emerging from his portable was a westernized version of Hemingway's "Big Two-Hearted River."

Another, a poet in an age not geared for poets, stumbled early from her nest to transcribe certain deathless lines before they should fade.

By the light of day, she found that her pucksy subconscious had guided her hand through a neat and complete grocery list.

Mine once gave me a ghost in mountain boots with an ice axe in its hand, but I will squirrel that episode away for another time.

I note with approval that our brisk Jaycees propose to quiz homebound tourists on their Vancouver Island reception. That it isn't always as we'd like it to be is indicated by a postcard from over the border.

"Evidently what tourists have been telling you is true of some places," write Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Pacini of Oakland. "We paid $17 for the night for three, and there were absolutely no springs on the beds."

"The mattresses lay on home-made wooden frames. The bathroom was so dirty none of us showered, and whenever possible, we used facilities in the service stations."

Now these Pacinis from California impressed me as nice people. I chatted with them—down where the Yankee cars wait packed like herring to be gulped by MV Coho—long enough to convince myself they'd be unlikely to gripe without real provocation.

"Actually," they conclude, "we loved Victoria, and hope to come back again soon and stay longer."

To better-policed lodgings, I trust.

Before we part, a hail and farewell to a topflight columnist and reporter, G. E. Mortimer, who leaves the bird of dawn on the other side of the building for the chaste newsroom of the Tronta Globe & Mail.

Victoria liked "Gem" Mortimer for himself and his winged words, and will miss him.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Japan's ambassador to Canada, His Excellency Nobuhiko Ushiba, was to call on Premier W. A. C. Bennett at British Columbia Legislative Buildings this afternoon.

Prior to the visit with Mr. Bennett in the premier's office, Mr. and Mrs. Ushiba were guests of Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes at Government House.

A group of 196 Victoria high school students who for the past seven weeks have been touring Europe under auspices of B.C. Students Travel Association, are due home at 8:40 a.m. Saturday when they land from a government ferry at Swartz Bay.

Teachers in charge of the group include Roy Mercer of Oak Bay High School, who originated the tour scheme.

The premier's wife, May Bennett, is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, where she is recovering from a serious spinal operation.

She should be released by about the end of August, the premier's office said.

A man charged with forgery was remanded one week for plea when he appeared in city police court Wednesday on a charge of forgery.

Neil Gordon Dalgley, 327 Princess, is alleged to have forged a cheque for $125.

Bail was set at $500 on one surety.

Three Victorians are among first students to receive diplomas in real estate appraisal awarded by the University of B.C.

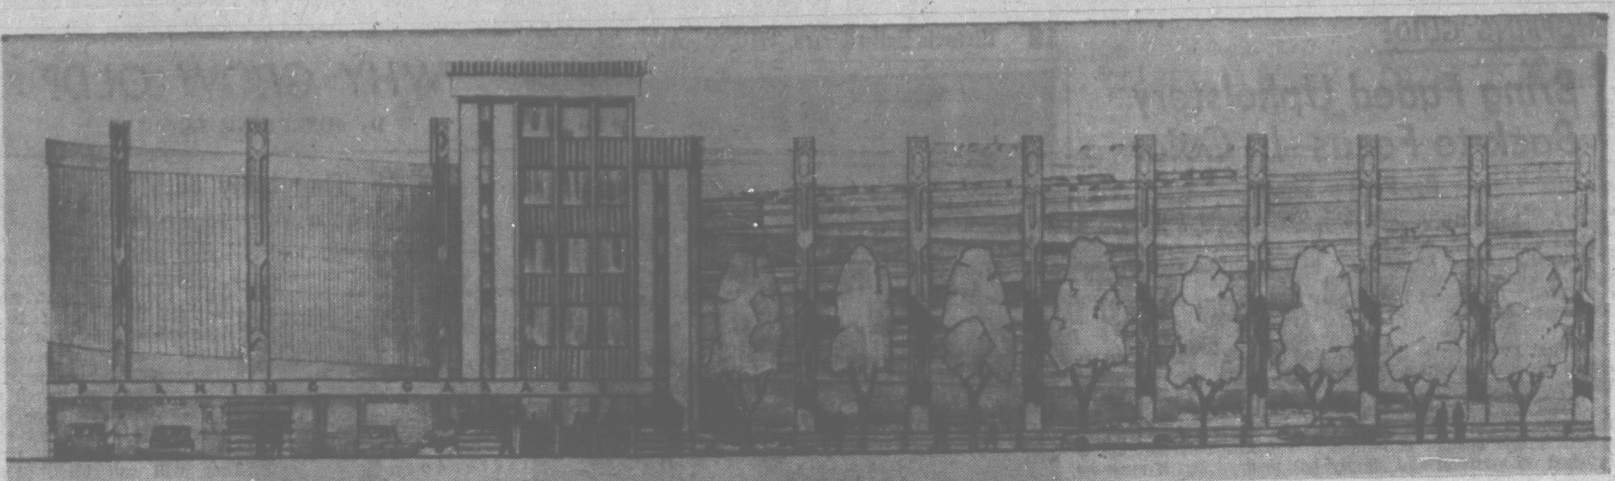

N. G. Curbishley, P. G. Jackson and W. P. Wright will receive diplomas in appraisal during a banquet at the university, Friday, Sept. 7.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Mason, 1624 Derby Road, that their nine-year-old daughter, Deborah Joan, has been awarded the Toronto Conservatory of Music silver medal for highest standing in grade three elocution in British Columbia.

Deborah attends Doncaster Elementary, where her elocution teacher was Mrs. Wilfred Ord.

Relief for downtown parking shortage will come in the shape of this four-storey parkade on View, between Blanshard and Douglas, before Christmas.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1962 —PAGE 17

NEW EXECUTIVE director of Family and Children's Service here is Gordon R. Wright, 38, who has done similar work in Vancouver. He will take over the reins formally Oct. 1. Mr. Wright said he hopes to be able to intensify group counselling services here as a method of handling double the present case-load.

All Fraser Fishing Off To Sept. 3

All fishing in the Fraser River, Gulf of Georgia and adjacent Canadian waters has been banned until Sept. 3 on orders of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission.

The commission will meet Friday in New Westminster to decide if the western section of the Strait of Juan de Fuca—westward from the William Head-Angeles Point line—should also be closed. The eastern sector of the strait is already included in the closure order.

The action has been taken, the commission said, because of the small run of Adams River sockeye. "It appears that drastic regulatory action is required for the remainder of the fishing season if a minimum escapement is to be obtained," the commission declared.

SPAWNING NEEDED

Barely enough sockeye have been appearing at the mouth of the Fraser River to maintain spawning in the Adams River north of Shuswap Lake.

Under normal conditions this would have been a big year for sockeye, equal to or even better than the record cycle year of 1958 when the Adams River catch exceeded 10,000,000 fish.

Before the season opened, however, the commission warned that there might be a small run due to "adverse estuarine conditions when the smolts left the Fraser River and entered salt water."

TROLLERS FREE

Local gillnetters were restricted to one day's fishing last week in the Strait of Juan de Fuca and to two days this week.

The day's catch last week was reported to be poor, but the two days this week turned up "fair" catches.

Commercial trolling in the strait over the past two weeks has been described by local fishermen as "generally fairly good."

Trollers are not affected by the closure order.

Tougher Laws Against Smoke In the Making

A tougher anti-smoke bylaw may be drawn up by the city's legal and engineering departments.

Advisory air pollution control committee Wednesday asked the two departments to draft a new bylaw within two weeks to replace one ruled invalid by the courts.

Committee also recommended city council appoint a full-time smoke inspector. This would force retirement of the present smoke inspector Thomas Walker who, at the age of 76, is permitted to work part-time only under long-standing council policy.

The bylaw may be toughened in two ways.

POWERS LESSENED

Acting city solicitor Christopher Randall said a discretionary power the council gave to the smoke inspector will have to be removed because it was ultra vires.

This discretion had permitted the smoke inspector to waive the regulations for plants wanting to "blow soot" to clean boilers or repair breakdowns.

This means that under the new bylaw, both operations will have to take place within the regular provision permitting only six minutes of black smoke in any hour.

(Ironically, it was one of the companies charged that attacked this discretionary provision in arguing the bylaw was invalid.)

MORE REGULATIONS

In addition, more regulations may be written into the new bylaw than the last, according to inspection branch chief William Jorgenson.

He said a long list of regulations intended for the previous bylaw were dropped because there was not enough time then to determine if they were legal. They will be included this time if possible.

"On the last occasion the bylaw was produced in such an urgent hurry—much less than two weeks—that some of these desirable regulations had to be dropped because we simply had no time to establish whether they were legal," Mr. Jorgenson explained.

TO AMEND ACT

He said more study was needed because many of the desirable inspection regulations were difficult to establish legally under present provincial legislation.

"Well, if necessary, we will have to ask for amendments to the Municipal Act," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of the committee.

Ald. Edgelow also told the meeting he had received a letter from an eastern Canada specialist in smoke and fly-ash regulation who said he had visited several Victoria firms offering to install proper equipment "but they replied they weren't prepared to spend the money."

He said the specialist would be contacted by city engineer J. C. Garnet for more information.

FAVORITISM ALLEGED

Decision to ask for a full-time smoke inspector follows several public altercations between Mr. Walker and some members of the committee, notably chairman Ald. Edgelow. He was accused of being too lenient with the industrial firms.

This sentiment was echoed in a biting letter read to the committee from Stewart and Hudson Ltd.

"For a long time we have felt there was a real lack of enforcement of the anti-smoke bylaw," wrote E. P. Hudson.

"We had a feeling that the inspection department favored the offenders."

SOME OF SPOILS won by Victoria's parade float are shown by City Hall secretaries Mrs. Joane Painter, left, and Mrs. Joan Hackney, today. The float scored each time it entered a parade this year, winning prizes here, at Sidney, the Blossomtime Festival in Bellingham, Vancouver's PNE Parade and Seattle Seafair. It was designed by city planning officer Roderick Clack. Motif was built by display artist Ray Garside. Bard Wheatcroft, city carpenter-foreman, built framework and drove the float in parades.

Cruiser Wishes 'Happy Returns'

Honoring Victoria's 100th birthday, the Argentine Navy's training cruiser La Argentina steamed into Esquimalt this morning on her first visit to western Canada.

She will be open to the public at the government jetty adjacent to HMCS Naden from 2 to 4:30 this afternoon.

Entering sunlit Esquimalt Harbor at 8:30, the ship fired a 21-gun national salute to Canada, which was returned from Macaulay Point. She then fired a 13-gun salute to Rear Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes, flag officer, Pacific coast.

Standing at attention, officers, cadets and crew lined the decks as the 8,630-ton cruiser slid alongside the jetty and the Naden band greeted them with a rousing march tune.

"It is our great pleasure to take part in Victoria's centennial," smiled the cruiser's commanding officer, Capt. Juan Carlos Gonzales Llanos. "It is also our great privilege to meet your navy."

23,000-MILE TRIP

The ship now carries 90 officer cadets—known as commissioned midshipmen—on a 23,000-mile training cruise from Buenos Aires to Valparaiso, Los Angeles, Victoria, Vancouver, Honolulu, Acapulco, Puerto Rico and Rio de Janeiro.

This morning Capt. Llanos called on Rear Admiral Finch-Noyes, Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt, Mayor R. B. Wilson of Victoria, and Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at Government House.

Tonight there will be a Pacific Command reception aboard the host ship, HMCS Cape Breton, tied up at "A" jetty in HMC Dockyard.

ENTERTAINMENT

The Naden Band and a guard from the naval barracks at Esquimalt will perform the sunset ceremony on the jetty at 8:30 p.m. in honor of the visiting Argentinians.

A number of sporting and social events have been arranged for the ship's company, which in addition to the 90

Thief Walks Right Into Arms of Law

A man who broke into a Broad Street restaurant in the early hours of this morning walked right into the arms of a patrolling policeman.

Edmond Walton, of Victoria, pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of breaking and entering the Mayfair Cafe, 1011 Broad Street.

Cons. Lawrie Belfrie told the court he was on patrol this morning when he saw that the front door of the cafe had been kicked in.

CHARITY TIN TAKEN

He saw a man inside, who ran out past him.

Belfrie caught him after a short chase, and found he had a Cerebral Palsy Association donation tin in his hand.

He had about $44 taken from the cafe in his front pockets, said Belfrie.

Investigation indicated that the cigarette machine in the cafe had been pried open and the coin box looted.

Prosecutor Angus Smith told the court that Walton had been convicted of a similar offence—breaking and entering a restaurant and rifling the coin box of a cigarette machine—on Feb. 28, 1961.

He received a suspended sentence that time.

Case was adjourned until Friday morning for sentence.

Edgelow Given Wide Support On CPR Issue

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow today said he will continue his campaign to force the CPR to give up the E & N land grant if the company gives up any more of its transportation services on Vancouver Island.

He added he has received many phone calls and letters urging him to continue the drive.

Ald. Edgelow was commenting on a statement by CPR regional vice-president J. N. Fraine that the company has fulfilled all its legal and moral obligations to the island and must alter its transportation services to meet changes in demand.

WILL STUDY FILE

"I have a whole file of articles, editorials and copies of the original contracts on this subject and I'm going to study it thoroughly," said Ald. Edgelow.

"Some of it has been supplied by George Bonner, president of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers Association who wholeheartedly endorses the campaign to end reduction of services."

Ald. Edgelow has suggested the UBCM sponsor a public inquiry into the company's island interests.

UBC Scholarships For 7 Islanders

Seven Island students are among 53 winners of scholarships announced by the University of British Columbia today. The students will enter the university this September.

Winners of the awards which total $17,742, are James B. Moore and Desmond E. Espley of Victoria; George H. J. Balzer, Alberni; Linda Jean Warren, Port Alberni; Derek H. Webb, Lake Cowichan; Louis J. Schulson, Ladysmith, and Donald L. Poy, Nanaimo.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Yesterday we were down to see Fort Rodd Hill. Could you tell me who the British were concerned about when they built the fort?

A. The fort was built in 1843. Preparations were designed to repel possible Russian attacks on Victoria expected if Britain entered a Russo-Turkish War on the side of the Turks as she did in the Crimea ten years later.

Q. Would you kindly tell me how many petals there are on the Dogwood flower? Have noticed that both in jewelry and printed on stationery some have four, others five. A. V.

A. Between four and six.

Bring Faded Upholstery Back to Focus—In Color

By Penny Saver

"You know," groaned my friend Linda the other day, "that sun may not have shone very much this summer, but it always managed to catch me with the living room drapes open. I think my chesterfield has faded at least two shades!"

"Well," I consoled in my best Penny Saver manner, "I'll see what I can do."

What I've done so far is to find a kit that cleans and re-colors your chesterfield (or draperies, lamp shades, canvas lawn furniture, awnings and such things).

First you vacuum thoroughly the material you wish to rejuvenate. Then you dissolve in water, as directed, the package of fabric cleaner contained in the kit. This solution is brushed on material and simply left to dry. But it must be allowed to dry for 36 hours or more before taking the next step, which is to spray on the color.

There are 18 colors to choose from—including several shades of the usual blue, green, red and yellow.

This spray coat does not leave a hard surface on the fabric but penetrates it. It will obscure most stains, fade streaks and water blemishes. And what is more—it resists sun fading, so you won't have to worry about leaving the drapes open!

Kit with fabric cleaner and a 12-ounce pressurized spray can of color sells for $3.95. Manufacturer gives estimate of one to two cans to cover an average upholstered chair. If you have something bigger, there is an economy kit that contains a quart of spray color for $5.60.

As this spray is intended for fabric upholstery rather than vinyl or plastic, company makes another spray which will put a sparkle on your kitchen and dinette sets. This comes in 12 colors which will dry in minutes, not crack, chip or peel and are waterproof.

Price of a 16-ounce spray can is just $2.99.

Call Penny at 382-3131 if you wish to know where I shopped and where I'm sending Linda shopping!

DEAR ABBY...

His Ignorance Is Obvious!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My sister has been in the mental hospital for many years. Her brain was damaged at birth and there is no hope for recovery. My husband is ashamed of it and has asked me not to mention it to anyone. Our children are 6 and 8 and he says if they should hear of it we should deny it, as he doesn't want them to know there is insanity in our family. I know he is wrong, but he won't listen to me. Maybe he'll listen to you.

GETTING NOWHERE.

DEAR GETTING: There are few families who have not had (or will not have) a relative with a mental illness. Our minds can suffer a breakdown just like our kidneys, livers or our hearts. A mental patient is as blameless for his condition as a cancer patient. Contact your mental health authorities and ask for printed information. Your husband's ignorance need not be permanent.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband was born he had brothers and sisters who were married and had children of their own. Consequently, my husband is younger than many of his nieces and nephews. One of his nieces is married to a man who is 10 years older than I am, and he insists on calling me "Aunt Mary." He is related to me only through marriage and I resent this "Aunt Mary" business because he emphasizes the "Aunt" when there is a crowd around. I'd rather he called me "Mary." How can I get my point across?

AUNT MARY. DEAR AUNT MARY: Tell him, good-naturedly (when there is a crowd around), "Out of respect for my elders, I really shouldn't correct you in public, but won't you please call me 'Mary'?"

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who is so ignorant all he can talk about is his job? When we sit down for a meal all he talks about is the different people he works with and what happened at the shop that day. I get so bored I could haul off and smack my old man in the mouth. I am 17.

FED-UP BOY. DEAR FED: Who is feeding you, Sonny? If it's your "old man," you had better keep quiet or else leave the table—hungry.

DEAR ABBY: I don't see why a two-year-old child rates space in your column just because she does the Twist. My baby is 10 months old and he can whistle and snap his fingers with both hands. "SOMETHING TO BRAG ABOUT." (Newark, N.J.)

BABIES THRIVE ON PACIFIC

IT'S THAT FRESHER, SWEETER FLAVOR OF THE ONLY EVAPORATED MILK PROCESSED IN B.C.

This cake in the form of a hoop-skirted bride is certain to win applause. You can either bake the cake or buy one, then decorate with creamy pineapple-marshmallow mixture.

Perfect for Bridal Shower

Here is a cake in the form of a hoop-skirted bride certain to win the heart of any bride-to-be in whose honor a party is being given.

The cake shown here is a good angel cake. You may wish to make your own, or you may prefer, instead, to buy one from some reliable shop. The method of shaping the cake and turning it into a very bouffant skirt for the doll-bride is really very simple, with instructions following. The creamy pineapple-marshmallow mixture used between layers of the split cake, and also to completely cover it, makes sumptuous eating for the guests. Be sure to choose a doll of the right height to be inserted in the funnel-opening that centres such cakes. This one was given a bridal veil and beaded coronet to top her blonde hair, and a tiny bouquet to carry. The bride's flower girl, should there be one, would delight in having the doll when the party is over.

Look Ahead If you own a freezer and want to save time, prepare the picnic sandwiches a day or two beforehand and freeze them. They can travel to the picnic in their original polythene freezing wrapper... and thaw out en route. But a word of caution, use fillings that you know freeze well—like sliced or chopped meat, cheese and peanut butter. Better avoid freezing egg sandwiches... eggs are not as tasty after being exposed to low temperatures.

BRIDAL SHOWER CAKE Suitable for 7 or 8-inch doll. One large angel cake, 1 can (20 ounces) crushed pineapple, 1 pound marshmallows, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 pint (2½ cups) whipping cream, silver dragees.

Dress the doll above the waist with white satin and lace. Give her a bridal veil and tie a tiny bouquet to one hand. Wrap lower part of body in waxed paper.

Buy or bake and cool a large angel cake—9 to 10 inches in diameter—and place it with the larger surface down. Using a sharp knife, trim off angular edges around the top so that the cake becomes the shape of a bouffant skirt. Split the cake horizontally into three layers.

Drain the pineapple well and measure ¼ cup of the syrup into a saucepan. Add marshmallows; stir and fold over low heat until marshmallows are about half melted. Remove from heat and continue to fold the mixture until it is smooth. Cool. Mix in the drained pineapple and lemon.

OIL-SCENTED DRAWERS For sweet-scented lineries and linens, rub the insides of chests and drawers with cotton batting soaked in oil of lavender, pine or lemon. To be effective, the rubbed surface must be unfinished sanded wood. Repeat the treatment each fall.

Ah, That Daily Bath! What a Way to Relax

Use your daily bath as a helpful. Bath oil is luxurious. A pillow which sticks to the back of the tub is great. However, the main thing is to forget the world for a short interval under the soothing influence of warm water. You do not have to tell me—I know, the telephone will ring as soon as you get well settled! Anyway, let it ring! They will call back. Even better, get one of those little switches so that you can turn the bell off. At any rate, no great calamity is going to happen in those few minutes. If you would like to have my relaxing exercise, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 24. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

We know that water is extremely relaxing and healing. Swimming is relaxing and many physical problems are treated with water therapy. For instance, polio victims exercise in water.

Why not, then, take your daily bath as a time for relaxation? This is a little trick I have learned. I cannot always do it, either, but I do whenever I can. I can feel exhausted and relax in a bath for 15 or 20 minutes and feel like a new woman.

While he is in the United States Miss Roxanne will stay with her grandmother here.

BE SMART—

An aptitude for accessorizing belongs to those lucky females labelled "snappy dressers." For it's the extra touches that really make a costume complete. Footnotes for at-home relaxation include little-heeled slippers of black suede; these boast detachable pompoms of leather fringe. Show off a tiny waistline with a splash of color; here, a brilliant orange taffeta belt turns the trick.

Unbreakable polythene containers are ideal to use when packing food for a picnic. They stack neatly, take up little space, and their tight covers prevent spilling.

Many Asian Women in Medicine

By JILL ARLETT

Two dark-eyed, petite women walked up the steps of Victoria's YWCA in saris and sandals last Monday and signed their names on the register—Dr. Khin Mey Kyi, of Bangkok, Thailand, and Dr. Pralom Sakuntanaga, of Rangoon, Burma.

Dr. Kyi and Dr. Sakuntanaga will tell you that medicine is one of the most popular and well-known professions for women in their respective countries.

"We need all the doctors we can get in Bangkok," Dr. Kyi explained. "There are a lot of communicable diseases, and we have many out-patients in both the public health centres and hospitals."

One reason for the shortage of physicians, Dr. Kyi said, is unequal distribution. Most graduate doctors and nurses want to stay in the city, and the rural areas are left unattended.

However, the supply of graduate doctors is increasing, as each year enrollment at Rangoon University is higher. About 100 to 150 students of medicine graduated last year, Dr. Kyi believed.

The two attractive doctors, who speak English beautifully, are constantly surprising people by their youthful appearances, although both claim to be over 30 years of age.

Under the Colombo Plan, they are taking their diplomas in public health at the University of Toronto. They have previously had over six years' training at universities in their respective countries and one year of internship.

In Victoria for only three days, the doctors were observing provincial health work here as part of their training course in Toronto.

Next year they will both be back "home" where Dr. Kyi will be with the city health division in Bangkok and Dr. Sakuntanaga will be assistant medical health officer in Burma.

"Dr. Kyi and I have made many friends in Canada," Dr.

Dr. Kyi

Dr. Sakuntanaga

Sakuntanaga said.

"We have been really amazed with all the flowers and the beauty in Victoria, too," she added, "but it will be nice to go home."

Showers Honor Betty Smith

A Saturday bride-elect, Miss Betty Smith, and her fiancé, Alan Schofield, were honored guests recently at a kitchen and grocery shower given by Mrs. John Cottle and her daughters, Beverley and Evelyn, at Nanaimo. Miss Smith was presented with a gladioli corsage and the couple was showered with confetti before opening gifts.

Other guests included Mrs. J. A. Schofield, Mrs. H. Nuttall, Mrs. A. Bindon, Mr. and Mrs. A. Schofield, Mr. and Mrs. B. Schofield, Mr. and Mrs. M. Odgers, Mr. and Mrs. H. Blasutig with Cheryl and Ronnie, Mr. George Schofield and Mr. J. Cottle.

Later, a no-host dinner was held at the Tideview Restaurant in Nanaimo, before visiting guests departed for home.

Miss Smith was also honored when Mrs. H. E. Maitland and Mrs. A. H. Bindon entertained with a shower at the Maitland home on Hadfield Avenue. Corsages were presented to the honor guest and to the mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. J. A. Schofield. Housework Can Keep You Fit!

By JUDY RICHARDSON

Garbed in the colorful sari of India, Dr. Bina Nelson looks far from what she is—the director of health and physical education at Vancouver's YWCA.

The "Dr." was earned at New York University where she took her Ph.D. in physical education, and some of the incongruity disappears when she changes to western attire to teach her classes.

In Victoria yesterday for a brief time before travelling out to speak to presidents of Y Teen groups from all over British Columbia who are holding a conference at Camp Thunderbird, near Sooke, Dr. Nelson had some comments to make on the problem of physical fitness for the modern woman.

"Women come to me wanting to know if they can get enough exercise from their daily chores to keep physically fit."

"I try to explain that they can if they give some thought to their movements as they go about these chores. The exercise can be very beneficial if they do it with their various muscles in mind."

"In my classes at Vancouver, in which the women range in age from three to 75, I emphasize walking. By nature women should move freely from the hips, but western women are inhibited

by girdles and high heels."

"I also think that yoga could play an important role for western people. You are apt to work hard at exercising and need a rest after, whereas we Easterners relax while we are working."

In her work, Dr. Nelson finds much opportunity for travel. She has been at the Vancouver YWCA for the past year, and before that was in Halifax and before that again in India. She also spent some time teaching in high schools and colleges in the United States but finds a school curriculum is "too limiting."

All this travel makes her very conscious of international relationships and the value of travel and the sharing of one's knowledge of other lands and other customs, part of which entered one of her talks at Camp Thunderbird yesterday on "India and World Service."

This was Dr. Nelson's first visit to Victoria and she is eager to come back—to share her knowledge of yoga, perhaps, with Victoria women, in return for a little of Victoria's "atmosphere."

Sunday's Fly-in Likely 'Way-out'

The Victoria Flying Services is going all out for its third annual open house, fly-in and drive-in Sunday.

A better phrase might be "way out."

The program calls for everything from an air acrobatic show and an aerobac to a costume contest and a get-acquainted autograph hunt.

They'll even go on in the face of rain, although the program will be reduced to music and movies in that case.

The Flying Services hangar will be gaily decorated "a la Barron" for the occasion, complete with hanging flower baskets, cluster lights (centennial candles) and seagulls. Planes are expected from Nelson, Penticton, Washington and Oregon.

They will be welcomed by committee members, who will dress up in costumes suitable for the theme. Bobbies will direct the traffic.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

LAKE TAHOE, Nev.—I flew out here on my "It's a Smile World" tour to see Jack Benny open at Harrah's—and they told me Jack was too sick to work.

"Carol Channing will go in his place, with Jane Morgan," they said. "Jack will try to open tomorrow night instead."

Jack had such bad laryngitis when he walked through the dining room at show time, he could hardly whisper. I was so tired from the plane trip and the columnistic long hours (hear, hear!) that I went to bed early figuring I'd see Jack open next night.

"Where were you last night?" they asked me next day. "Jack went on to tell the audience he couldn't work. He intended to stay on three minutes. He stayed on 50 minutes. Then Carol Channing substituted for him. Jane Morgan sang. It was the longest show they ever had—2 hours and 5 minutes."

Jack is about the richest man in show business—for close to a quarter of a century he's been earning more than most of the people he works for—and he just can't work.

"And now I'm doing something new—a Broadway show like I do here, and in Las Vegas," Jack told me, next day.

Jack, lighting up a pipe after breakfast, went on talking about more working plans.

"I've got 13 shows in the can for next season already. One of the greatest was with Lawrence Welk. I'm exchanging one with Bob Hope. I've got Carol Burnett. She's the biggest smash around the country, a comedienne than can really get hokey."

That night when I finally saw Jack's show, his right-hand man, Irving Fine, said to me: "Jack asked me to say he wishes you wouldn't print any of the jokes. He'll probably use those in his New York show."

I agreed, of course. There were only three basic jokes anyway—Jack's stung, he's 39 years old, and he insists on playing the fiddle when nobody wants him to play it. Three jokes—each of them worth a couple of million bucks—probably the most valuable jokes in show business history.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL IN N.Y.

Frank Sinatra phoned Juliet Prowse right after her act at the Concord Hotel in the Catskills; she opens Aug. 23 at his Cal-Neva Lodge. (Juliet says Eddie Fisher wanted her to work with him—but asked her to delete the song kidding Cleopatra).

Mamie Van Doren requested 50s to work two nights at Freedman; no answer yet.

Jackie Gleason, on the CBS train en route to New York, was asked by an interviewer why comics look so unfunny offstage. "They look sad," said JG, "because they're not making money!"

Rochester industrialist Martin Sher was mauled by a German shepherd dog, required 16 stitches. "Obviously," says Sher, "it was an East German shepherd dog." Helen Hayes' son, actor James MacArthur, bought a $60,000 home in Lake Arrowhead, Calif. Connie Francis bought a huge round bed in France, shipped it to her New Jersey home.

EARL'S PEARLS: In 1892 a restaurant sign read: "Count your change before leaving." Today it reads: "Don't count on leaving with any change." —Camden Co (Ga.) Tribune.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The status symbols for today's young executives are two-button suits and five-button telephones.—Bernard Yudin.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: There are two kinds of wealthy women—those who married rich husbands, and those who divorced rich husbands.

Those TV summer reruns can be confusing. Oscar Holmka just watched Ben Casey take out an appendix he'd already removed last winter. That's earl, brother.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

'Alley Artists' Paint Tourists

By JACK HUTTON
QUEBEC CITY—Eighteen-year-old David Weissmann looks and talks like a typical Canadian teen-ager. But he differs from most of them in one important way.

David officially has no country. Yet the German-born young man whom I met last week is probably the most successful of the "alley-artists" here who make their living by painting tourists.

David, who collaborates with another young artist in their "portrait-in-five-minutes" business, handed me a watercolor portrait of myself after a brisk four minutes and 35 seconds of sketching.

It may not have been exactly "me." But it had the same bold and incisive lines that color David's views of Canada, life and the art which he hopes to follow for a lifetime.

"This isn't real art, of course," the 18-year-old explained over his clipboard. "But I'm able to save something each week so that eventually I'll leave Canada and try learning more about art overseas."

No Support

Did he have to leave Canada? "Certainly," said David with emphasis. "Our support of artists is absolutely pathetic. How many artists in Canada are able to support themselves and a family on what their paintings earn?"

David, who confessed that he actually has heard of very few Canadian artists (he knew neither Harold Town nor Ken Seeger), added that the situation is changing.

"But it's still better elsewhere," he said. "I wouldn't mind coming back to Canada, but I'll have to travel in Europe first. I've just finished two years of art school in Syracuse, New York, and would like to study overseas."

David, an engaging self-confident young man who speaks with the worldliness of someone far older than himself, has already seen more of the world than most people his age.

Born in Germany when Hitler's Nazi regime was cracking, David was raised in Portugal as a "stateloss"—a person officially without a country to call his own. Seven years ago he came to Toronto to live with relatives. And, because he spent his important teen years in Canada, David has the usual likes and dislikes of a Canadian teen-ager.

But he can also speak English, French, German, Portuguese or Spanish for his tourist clients. He's proficient in each language.

Confuses Customs

Does he want to become a Canadian citizen? "Now that I'm 18, I can if I want to," David said. "But I'm going to wait. It won't bother me that much. I expect, while I'm travelling. It just confuses a few customs people."

He swept back his long, straight blond hair with his hand and surveyed the three wooden chairs, two sample portraits and water colors that make up his alley "studio."

"I'm not saying how much I can make here," he said, "but I charge $3.50 for a small portrait and $3.50 for a larger one. I get down here some time around 10 a.m. and work as long as I feel like it, sometimes late in the evening with a small floodlight."

"Don't get me wrong, I never tell myself that this is the art I want to paint. But at least this makes a living and is giving me a stake for the future. That's all that counts."

I left as David smiled at two teen-age American girls and said, "Bonjour." The girl on the right wrinkled her nose and turned to her companion. "What does that mean?" she asked.

David's 18-year-old face was a study of restraint. "Perhaps you would allow me to paint your portrait?" he asked politely. David Weissmann, the artist, had become David Weissmann, the businessman, again.

New Viaduct Studied

VANCOUVER (CP)—The city council has ordered an engineering survey for a new $15,000,000 Georgia viaduct. If the 47-year-old viaduct is replaced, the crossing could form part of a major traffic artery linking the city with the Trans-Canada Highway freeway under construction in suburban Burnaby.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Gregory Sholl, age 12, of Pittsburgh, Penna., for his question:

Exactly How Many Different Atoms Are There?

Our world is made from an endless assortment of solids, liquids and gases—and all these countless substances are made of atoms. But the list of different atoms is very short. We know more or less, how many different atoms are found in nature—but new discoveries are being made all the time. Today's list of atoms may be longer next week or next year.

If we could separate the atoms in the earth's crust, almost half of them would be atoms of oxygen. The atomic number of oxygen is eight, which means that every oxygen atom has eight protons in its nucleus and eight orbiting electrons. Oxygen has been given the atomic weight of 16, but a few oxygen atoms weigh more than their brothers because they have extra neutrons in their nuclei.

There are oxygen atoms with weights of 17 and 18. Oxygen 15 and 19 are radioactive atoms breaking down into smaller atoms. All these assorted oxygen atoms; however, have the atomic number eight and the same chemical properties. They are all isotopes of the chemical element oxygen. Most of the chemical elements have brother isotopes. If we count these isotopes as different atoms, we have a list with about a thousand items.

The list of chemical elements is much shorter. In nature, there are 92 different chemical elements, but most of them are so rare that we never meet them in everyday life. Some are radioactive elements such as uranium, busy breaking down into small atoms. Eight of the natural elements are so plentiful that they make up more than 98 per cent of the earth's crust.

more elements have been added to the list since 1940 and the number of known elements is now 103. Next week or next year, the list may be longer.

The chemical elements are arranged on a neat chart of rows and columns. This is the Periodic Table which can give a wealth of information at a glance. On the basis of this orderly arrangement, the chemist can predict what the elements with atomic numbers from 104 to 118 will be like—but he cannot tell exactly how many different atoms will finally be discovered.

The chemists of 1770 knew of only 20 chemical elements. Eleven more were discovered in the next 25 years and in 1869 the list had grown to 63. The proper arrangement of the wonderful Periodic Table was solved at the start of the First World War and when your parents were born, the scientists had discovered only 88 of the 92 elements from which our world is made.

HIGH SCHOOLS CLOSED TO BLOCK VIOLENCE

PANAMA (AP)—The government closed high schools in Panama City today in an effort to prevent the spread of student violence at the University of Panama.

About 200 high school students joined some 50 striking extremist university students Wednesday in barricading corridors and nailing classroom doors shut to prevent nonstriking students from attending classes at the university.

Mob Demands Food, Jobs In New Algeria Violence

SUCCEEDS RUSSIAN

East Germans Name General

BERLIN (UPI)—Communist East Germany today appointed its own East Berlin military commandant to fill the spot vacated when the Soviet Union abolished its Gerlin military headquarters.

ALLIES REFUSE RECOGNITION

WASHINGTON (AP)—A state department spokesman said today the United States has no intention of recognizing the Communist East German regime or "any administrative entities" of it.

Press Officer Joseph W. Reap made this statement when reporters asked what the U.S. attitude is in view of the reported replacement of the Russian commandant in East Berlin with an East German general.

Reap said a U.S.-British-French statement expected to be issued later will "reflect our attitude" on this latest move in Berlin.

"Any changes like that do not affect Western rights and Soviet responsibilities in Berlin," Reap said.

The official East German news agency ADN reported that Maj. Gen. Helmut Poppe was named East Berlin commandant by the East German defense minister, Gen. Heinz Hoffmann.

Poppe will make his headquarters in the Karlshorst area where the Soviet military commandant for East Berlin had his headquarters until the Soviets abolished the post in a surprise move Wednesday.

The East German action was seen by Western observers as another move in a gigantic power play to get Britain, France and the United States out of Berlin and force the West to deal with the East German regime.

HALTED CARRIERS

It came as American troops halted three Soviet armored personnel carriers at the "Checkpoint Charlie" crossing point in the Berlin wall when the Russians refused to accept a U.S. military escort through West Berlin.

After more than a four-hour delay at the crossing point, the Russian vehicles finally proceeded through the American sector to the Soviet war memorial in the British sector for a changing of the guard.

Despite the Soviet commander's refusal to move with a U.S. military escort, he got the escort anyway.

A U.S. military spokesman said a military police sedan followed the three armored carriers from Checkpoint Charlie and then pulled ahead of the column. The spokesman said a West Berlin police escort car then fell in at the rear, so that Western vehicles headed and tailed the column.

"We are not going to change our long-existing traffic rules in West Berlin to suit the Russians," he said.

'Occupation Outlived Its Day'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio described as a clumsy trick today Western efforts to continue the four-power command in Berlin.

In a home service commentary, the broadcast said the Russian decision to abolish its commandant marks "a new step toward normalizing the situation in Berlin and strengthening peace in Europe—a step which is more than timely and extremely necessary."

"It is altogether high time to put an end to the remnants of the occupation regime in Germany. If now the American, British and French military commandants try to make a show of the continued existence of a four-power 'kommandatura' this is only a rather clumsy trick."

"It is a patent attempt to preserve the occupation regime, which has outlived its day... and in this way to cover up the transformation of the front line city into a NATO military base."

Winnie Pleads

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill, discharged from hospital to his London home three days ago, is "pleading" to be allowed to visit his country estate, it was learned today.

One of his assistants said: "He keeps pleading with his doctors to allow him to go to his country home, but they have advised a few days rest here first."

'SHE' IS ROUGH

Never underestimate the power of a woman, particularly when she's a he and a policeman to boot. New York patrolman Robert Crowley, dressed as a bobbysoxer, holds the knife taken from a mugging suspect he said attacked him in Central Park. He was one of 10 huskies dressed in women's garb as new drive on street crime was launched. (AP Wirephoto.)

New Gov't Offices Stormed

ALGIERS (UPI)—A howling, screaming mob of more than 3,000 demonstrators swept through Algiers and invaded the government headquarters building today demanding an end to the Evian truce agreements with France which ended Algeria's seven-year-old civil war.

The single cry that rose from thousands of throats was "March 19 to the gallows." March 19, 1962, was the date of the signing of the accords at Evian, France, which ended French rule in Algeria and gave this country its independence.

But the agreement also set up a provisional executive headed and called for elections within a certain time. It was followed by weeks of struggle among warring political factions while the country's economy fell into chaos.

WANT ACTION

One of the older demonstrators in today's surge on the building which houses the powers currently administering the country told newsmen: "We've had enough words. Now we want action. We want bread, we want work and somewhere to live."

"I spent five years in jail under colonialism and that did not put me in any mood to undergo such disappointments as I have done since July 1."

The mob swept past the scene of the May 13 revolt in Algiers that brought President Charles de Gaulle back to power four years ago and urged into the government building. Police hastily slammed the big glass doors and stood behind them.

They turned back the mob with fire hoses.

POWER STRUGGLE

Other crowds of demonstrators remained in the Boulevard de Lattre de Tassigny by the duties entrance to the building, which stands as the dominating structure of Algiers central square called the forum.

Today's demonstrations came as a result of the struggle for power between the political bureau, controlled by strongman vice-premier Ahmed Ben Bella, and the council of the fourth military district, the guerrilla force which pledged itself to be "guardian of the revolution" until a national assembly is elected.

Canadian Metal Firms Mentioned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two Canadian metals firms probably will be brought into a senate subcommittee's investigation of the bulging U.S. nickel stockpile, it was revealed today.

R. C. Coburn, chief subcommittee counsel, said public hearings probably will be held on U.S. government contracts negotiated with Falconbridge Ltd. and the International Nickel Co.

It also was learned that two more high officials in the Eisenhower administration may be involved in the broadening investigation. They are John Hay Whitney, one-time ambassador to Great Britain, and Robert B. Anderson, who succeeded George M. Humphrey as treasury secretary under Eisenhower.

U.S. Senate Backs Aid For Lumber

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate, by voice vote, today approved a limited program to aid the ailing lumber industry.

The Senate passed a bill to promote the sale of domestically produced lumber—softwood and hardwood—in the United States and abroad through research on lumber production and marketing.

Under the terms of the bill, the commerce department would receive 50 per cent of the gross receipts from the duties collected on lumber, floorings, moldings and plywood.

In 1961, considered a standard year, this amount would have totalled about $7,350,000.

Dief Urged to Attend ECM 'Little Summit'

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Australia and New Zealand today were reported seeking Canadian support for a "little summit" meeting to precede the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers opening Sept. 10.

Specifically, Prime Ministers Menzies of Australia and Holyoake of New Zealand were said to be urging Prime Minister Diefenbaker to move forward his scheduled arrival date in London to facilitate a tripartite meeting.

It was understood here that Diefenbaker planned to reach London Sept. 8. With the usual preconference formalities, this would leave little time for any lengthy talks with Menzies and Holyoake.

The Canada-Australia-New Zealand parley would presumably be designed to synchronize strategy on European Common Market discussions expected to dominate the full conference of prime ministers. All three countries are worried about the conditions of British membership of the European Economic Community.

LIKELY COOL

The suggestion of a "little summit" is unlikely to meet with any great favor in Whitehall.

Any thought that the three premiers were "synchronizing their watches" in advance of the official session would, it is felt, merely add to British difficulties.

Ever since Britain launched her bid to get into ECM a little more than a year ago, the government has sought to steer delicately between its desire for entry and its concern to obtain trading safeguards for the Commonwealth countries, particularly Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Negotiations for British entry broke off in apparent stalemate in Brussels early this month, but ministers are still hopeful that a way can be found to reconcile Commonwealth and European interests.

IF HE COMES TO UN

JFK Ready To Meet Nikita Again

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy, who once professed a dislike for summit conferences without prior assurances that they would bear fruit, has hinted he would like to confer with Soviet Premier Khrushchev if Khrushchev comes to the United Nations this fall.

At the same time, Kennedy threw a wallop at the self-esteem of Americans, warning that the United States is well behind Russia in the space race and may stay behind for years before catching up and possibly moving ahead by the end of the 1960s.

"Anybody who attempts to suggest that we are not behind misleads the American people," said the president.

"We are well behind but we are making a tremendous effort," Kennedy said in referring to the space race during Wednesday's press conference.

"This country is making a vast effort which is going to be much bigger next year and the years to come and represents a very heavy burden upon us all. But we might as well recognize that we are behind now and we are going to be for awhile."

The United States currently is spending about $2,400,000,000 a year in civilian and $1,500,000,000 a year in military space programs. Kennedy said he didn't know what military advantage Russia may have gained with its superior rockets and ships "but it is very possible."

PGE Line Blocked By Derailment

VANCOUVER (CP)—South-bound passengers from Prince George were taken by bus to Clinton today to join their train after a Pacific Great Eastern freight was derailed 21 miles south of the northern city. The cause of the derailment, near Stoner, is not known.

SURPRISE VISIT

Day-long discussions with Canadian leaders will be held by U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Ottawa Friday. He will meet Prime Minister Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Green. The visit was hastily arranged when it was discovered Rusk would spend part of his vacation in Canada.

Rocket Fuel Explosion Kills Three

BACCHUS, Utah (AP)—

Three men were killed and three injured today when a rocket-fuel curing building blew up at the big Hercules Powder Company missile and rocket complex here.

R. G. Sailer, assistant works manager, said an undetermined number of 40-pound charges of a propellant being developed for use in experimental motors were in the building.

He said no one works in the curing building and the six men killed and injured were delivering the charges from a mixing plant a short distance away.

CARRIERS OF POTENTIAL DEATH

Plastic Bottles For Gas Blasted

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Fire authorities warned today that plastic gas containers are carriers of potential death and destruction.

Provincial Fire Marshal Basil Nixon appealed for a halt to the manufacture of these "enticing but highly dangerous" bottles.

He told 103 B.C. fire chiefs at their 31st annual fire college that though his department has no control over the manufacture of the plastic containers, every department and hardware store has been asked to take them off their shelves.

Chief Dick Sowden of Richmond told of a 20-month-old boy who pulled a plastic gas container off a shelf. The gas poured over him from a loose cap and a pilot light in the basement of the home where he was set fire to the spilled gas.

"The container melted to a mere pancake," said the chief. "If it had been a metal container some of the liquid would have been kept inside and the fire would not have been as intense."

The youngster burned to death. Assistant chief W. F. Stevenson of Quesnel said the containers look very good but they are highly dangerous.

The chiefs agreed that plastic containers—as well as glass bottles subject to breakage—should be banned as gas containers. The fire marshal, they said, should consider recommending regulations to create approved containers.

Fire Marshal Nixon said this would be difficult in view of the vast areas, including wilderness where gas bottles are carried.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hoot Gibson, 70, the rough-riding, quick-shooting cowboy of three decades of western films, died in hospital today of cancer.

'SPEAKING FOR HIMSELF,' SAYS THOMPSON

Hitler, Mussolini Idolized by Sacred Deputy Chief

(Times News Services)
MONTREAL—A remark by deputy Social Credit leader Real Caouette that Mussolini and Hitler were his political idols touched off a flap across the country today.

Mr. Caouette's Sacred cohorts were obviously embarrassed; other political leaders wasted no time in jumping on the statement.

In an article by Helen Pilote in the current issue of Le Magazine McLean, Mr. Caouette was asked:

"Who are your political heroes of history?" He replied "Mussolini and Hitler" and added:

"Fascism, like socialism and communism, is a dictatorship."

CAOINETTE

Social Credit seeks the liberty of the individual. I admire Mussolini's quality as leader and I regret that he was a Fascist. I admire in Hitler his economic reforms and I consider that he brought his people out of misery. I regret that he employed for war instead of for peace the ideas which he had."

In an interview Wednesday after the story had broken Mr. Caouette attempted to tone down his remarks.

In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Caouette said that when he refers to Hitler and Mussolini as his political heroes he thinks only of their economic policies during the prewar depression years.

"As for their dictatorial struggles and their racial struggles they have never been an example for me," he added. Mr. Caouette said the magazine did not quote his complete reply to the question.

"During the depression years," he said, "while we in Canada were in economic misery, these men brought prosperity to their countries."

"There is no question for me of admiring their racial policies. The extermination of Jews, for example, was anti-Christian. There is no question of following such policies."

National Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said today that Mr. Caouette was "speaking entirely for himself" when

HMS Hecate returned from transporting the 100 settlers to the Cowichan, and reported they had been safely landed, and the Indians seemed satisfied for a gift amounting to a pair of blankets each, for which they surrendered the land, except for village sites and potato patches. The settlers were divided into three groups, one going to Shawnigan, another to Soanenos and the third to Quamichan.

On the way back from Cowichan, the Hecate stopped at Sansum Narrows, where Governor Douglas went ashore and inspected the copper mines. Mr. Smith, the manager, gave the governor several specimens of rich copper ores.

The question of making roads to the suburbs passable in winter is expected to be a leading item on the agenda of the first meeting of town council.

De Gaulle Escaped Death 'by Inches'

Three Years Peace

VANCOUVER (CP)—Industrial peace appears assured in British Columbia for the next three years.

Industry and labor spokesmen said Wednesday all the major unions have signed wage contracts for two, three, and in some cases, four years.

Industry officials said this means business can plan ahead more confidently than in the past.

An official of the city's board of trade said long-term contracts mean orders can be taken and filled at the quoted prices.

This, he said, has been a problem in the construction industry, particularly, where road contractors have seen profits disappear under new labor agreements.

Industrial concerns in Eastern Canada and even Europe had recognized that labor in B.C. had been pretty militant and had often led the march to higher pay.

As a result, he said, industry has been reluctant to locate in British Columbia without some reasonable assurance of co-operation from labor.

The long-term wage pacts, he said, would give businessmen some of the assurance that has been lacking.

Major unions that have settled contracts for the next two or three years include the Pulp and Sulphite Workers, Mine, Mill, Steelworkers, Packing-house workers, all the building trades unions and the International Woodworkers of America, the province's biggest union.

PARIS (Reuters)—A nation-wide hunt was pressed today for terrorists who ambushed President de Gaulle's car Wednesday night in an assassination attempt that failed by only a fraction.

De Gaulle, 71, escaped uninjured but his car was hit by at least 10 bullets as it sped through a hall of machine-gun fire on the outskirts of Paris. One of the bullets missed him by about two inches.

Police launched an all-out search for the would-be assassins, believed to be linked with the "French Algeria" European terrorist Secret Army Organization.

Within two hours of the attack, police found an abandoned truck which had been stolen, containing two heavy machine-guns used in the assassination attempt.

Police said they believed a similar attempt on de Gaulle, or a rehearsal, was planned for Aug. 8, the last time the president was in Paris.

They also said they had traced the truck to a garage at Joigny, in the Honne area of central France.

The attempt came as de Gaulle was being driven to Villancoubay military airport for a flight to his country home at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises.

Accompanying him were his wife and his son-in-law, Col. Alain de Boissieu, who also escaped uninjured despite the spray of bullets that smashed the rear window, punctured two tires and pitted the body of the presidential car.

Wednesday night's attempt, however, was considered to have brought de Gaulle nearer to death than at any time since he returned to power in France in 1958.

His car was hit by bursts of machine-gun fire from two groups of men separated by about 50 yards on a dimly-lit road near a crossroads four miles from the airport.

De Gaulle's chauffeur, who was driving at high speed, roared through the hall of bullets, stopping only at the entrance of the airfield to permit the president to change to another car.

He flew from the airport as scheduled and arrived safely at Colombey.

The attack was the second assassination attempt on de Gaulle within a year. Two other plots against his life also have been uncovered during the last year.

Grenades, Bombs Found Near Road

Police said between 120 and 150 rounds of ammunition were fired. Grenades and incendiary bombs also were found along the roadside. They believed about 10 men took part in the attack.

Interior Minister Roger Frey said despite his narrow escape de Gaulle "retained his usual imperturbable calm but I think this time he found it a little close."

Escorting the presidential car were motorcycle policemen and a carload of security men. Two bullets whizzed through the helmet of one motorcyclist but he also miraculously escaped injury.

The attack was the second assassination attempt on de Gaulle within a year. Two other plots against his life also have been uncovered during the last year.

CAOQUETTE

"It's unfortunate that such reports reach the public," said Mr. Thompson in an interview, "they don't do anyone any good."

Mr. Thompson said the statements "had nothing to do with the party."

GIVES OWN VIEWS

At the same time, the Social Credit leader gave his own views on fascism and dictatorship which, he said, "have no place on the face of the earth."

"It is the very antithesis of what our free way of life demands—the guaranteeing of individual liberty and justice."

"Social Credit's basic premise is that the purpose of all organization in society is that it must assist the individual not only in his quest for physical security but for individual freedom which is the core of our way of life."

Liberal Leader Pearson said Mr. Caouette's choice of political heroes "will outrage every decent Canadian and earn only contempt" for the deputy Social Credit leader.

NOT SURPRISED
T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said no one should be surprised by Mr. Caouette's choice if they've followed Social Credit history in Canada. During the election campaign, "I pointed out that what Social Credit is doing in Canada was exactly what Hitler had done in Germany in the 1930s, namely attempting to get money from the rich and votes from the poor by promising to protect them from each other."

B.C. Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi said Mr. Caouette's choice of words was rather unfortunate.

But he said he is sure that the deputy leader has no ideas similar to the two dictators, although he might make a statement in regard to certain

During the delay, the Soviet officer in charge was said to have threatened that all American military traffic on the East German autobahn or in East Berlin would get military escorts if he was forced to take one.

The incident at the wall followed shortly after two U.S. army patrol cars had cruised unhampered through East Berlin in a test of Russia's virtual renunciation of Berlin's four-power status.

A suspended sentence of six months was handed out in city police court Wednesday to a man found guilty of stealing 100 feet of city water hose from a boulevard.

John A. Clark, 26, 1325 Denman, was bound in his own recognition of $250 to abstain from drinking for six months.

U.S. Messages Remain Secret

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government today refused to make public messages received from the United States about Dr. Robert Soblen on the ground disclosure would harm good diplomatic relations.

The court was handed a note signed by the foreign secretary, Lord Home, which claimed Crown privilege—the right to refuse to divulge information.

The convicted Soviet spy's chief defence counsel, Elwyn Jones, earlier had subpoenaed Home Secretary Henry Brooke to produce the messages.

The court was formally hearing an application by the convicted Soviet spy for a writ of habeas corpus requiring authorities to give reasons for his detention in London's Brixton Prison.

Attorney-General Sir John Hobson today began his rebuttal of Jones, who had spoken for a total of seven hours.

Jones argued, to no avail, that Crown privilege could not be claimed in habeas corpus proceedings.

He completed his arguments on the second day of resumed High Court proceedings on Britain's bid to deport the 61-year-old psychiatrist to the United States, where he faces a life sentence for spying for Russia.

Hobson said Soblen, suffering from leukemia, was not in immediate danger.

IF HE COMES TO UN

JFK Ready
To Meet
Nikita Again

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy, who once professed a dislike for summit conferences without prior assurances that they would bear fruit, has hinted he would like to confer with Soviet Premier Khrushchev if Khrushchev comes to the United Nations this fall.

At the same time, Kennedy threw a wallop at the self-esteem of Americans, warning that the United States is well behind Russia in the space race and may stay behind for years before catching up and possibly moving ahead by the end of the 1960s.

"Anybody who attempts to suggest that we are not behind misleads the American people," said the president.

"We are well behind but we are making a tremendous effort," Kennedy said in referring to the space race during Wednesday's press conference.

"This country is making a vast effort which is going to be much bigger next year and the years to come and represents a very heavy burden upon us all. But we might as well recognize that we are behind now and we are going to be for awhile."

The United States currently is spending about $2,400,000,000 a year in civilian and $1,500,000,000 a year in military space programs, Kennedy said he didn't know what military advantage Russia may have gained with its superior rockets and ships "but it is very possible that there will develop military significance and it is for that reason that the U.S. military program is being carried on at $1,500,000,000."

Kennedy's reference to Khrushchev came amid rumors that the Soviet leader might attend the fall sessions of the UN. Kennedy said he didn't know whether Khrushchev will make the trip, but "of course, if he

ALGERIA VIOLENCE

Mob Demands
Food, Jobs

ALGIERS (UPI)—A howling, screaming mob of more than 3,000 demonstrators swept through Algiers and invaded the government headquarters building today demanding an end to the Evian truce agreements with France which ended Algeria's seven-year-old civil war.

The single cry that rose from thousands of throats was "March 19 to the gallows." March 19, 1962, was the date of the signing of the accords at Evian, France, which ended French rule in Algeria and gave this country its independence.

But the agreement also set up a provisional executive and called for elections within a certain time. It was followed by weeks of struggle among warring political factions while the country's economy fell into chaos.

One of the older demonstrators in today's surge on the building which houses the powers currently administering the country told newsmen: "We've had enough words. Now we want action. We want bread, we want work and somewhere to live."

"I spent five years in jail under colonialism and that did not put me in any mood to undergo such disappointments as I have done since July 1." The mob swept past the scene of the May 13 revolt in Algiers that brought President Charles de Gaulle back to power four years ago and surged into the government building. Police hastily slammed the big glass doors and stood behind them.

They turned back the mob with fire hoses. Other crowds of demonstrators tors remained in the Boulevard de Lattre de Tassigny by the other entrance to the building, which stands as the dominating structure of Algiers central square called the forum.

Today's demonstrations came as a result of the struggle for power between the political bureau, controlled by strongman vice-premier Ahmed Ben Bella, and the council of the fourth military district, the guerrilla force which pledged itself to be "guardian of the revolution" until a national assembly is elected.

U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate, by voice vote, today approved a limited program to aid the ailing lumber industry.

The Senate passed a bill to promote the sale of domestically produced lumber—softwood and hardwood—in the United States and abroad through research on lumber production and marketing.

Under the terms of the bill, the commerce department would receive 50 per cent of the gross receipts from the duties collected on lumber, floorings, moldings and plywood.

HIGH SCHOOLS CLOSED

PANAMA (AP)—The government closed high schools in Panama City today in an effort to prevent the spread of student violence at the University of Panama.

About 200 high school students joined some 50 striking extremist university students Wednesday in barricading corridors and nailing classroom doors shut to prevent nonstriking students from attending classes at the university.

Victim Fleeing
To Western Area

BERLIN (UPI)—Communist border guards tonight shot and killed a 19-year-old boy on West Germany territory as he tried to flee to the West.

The incident occurred on the French sector of the border a few hours after Communist East Germany announced appointment of an East German army general as military commander of East Berlin.

The youth, an East German transport policeman, was shot after he was 10 to 15 feet inside West Berlin by three salvoes from Communist border police machine pistols. West Berlin police said.

He was picked up by West Berlin firemen but was dead on arrival at a hospital.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt immediately rushed to the scene.

The announcement of appointment of an East German general as commander in Berlin followed Wednesday's abolition by the Russians of the post of Soviet commandant there.

The official East German news agency ADN reported that Maj. Gen. Helmut Poppe was named East German commandant by the East German defense minister, Gen. Heinz Hoffmann.

Poppe will make his headquarters in the Karlshorst area where the Soviet military commandant for East Berlin had his headquarters until the Soviets abolished the post in a surprise move Wednesday.

The East German action was seen by Western observers as another move in a gigantic power play to get Britain, France and the United States out of Berlin and force the West to deal with the East German regime.

HALTED CARRIERS

It came as American troops halted three Soviet armored personnel carriers at the "Checkpoint Charlie" crossing point in the Berlin wall when the Russians refused to accept a U.S. military escort through West Berlin.

After more than a four-hour delay at the crossing point, the Russian vehicles finally proceeded through the American sector to the Soviet war memorial in the British sector for a changing of the guard.

Despite the Soviet commander's refusal to move with a U.S. military escort, he got the escort anyway. A U.S. military spokesman said a military police sedan followed the three armored carriers from Checkpoint Charlie and then pulled ahead of the column. The spokesman said a West Berlin police escort car then fell in at the rear, so that Western vehicles, headed and tailed the column.

WONT CHANGE

"We are not going to change our long-existing traffic rules in West Berlin to suit the Russians," continued on Page 3

BACCHUS, Utah (AP)—Three men were killed and three injured today when a rocket-fuel curing building blew up at the big Hercules Powder Company missile and rocket complex here.

R. G. Sailer, assistant works manager, said an undetermined number of 40-pound charges of a propellant being developed for use in experimental motors were in the building.

He said no one works in the curing building and the six men killed and injured were delivering the charges from a mixing plant a short distance away.

ALLIES REFUSE RECOGNITION

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and France jointly declared today that Russia cannot abolish four-power occupation rule of Berlin "without the consent of the three powers."

'Occupation
Outlived
Its Day'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio described as a clumsy trick today Western efforts to continue the four-power command in Berlin.

In a home service commentary, the broadcast said the Russian decision to abolish its commandant marks "a new step toward normalizing the situation in Berlin and strengthening peace in Europe—a step which is more than timely and extremely necessary."

"It is altogether high time to put an end to the remnants of the occupation regime in Germany. If now the American, British and French military commandants try to make a show of the continued existence of a four-power 'kommandatura,' this is only a rather clumsy trick."

"It is a patent attempt to preserve the occupation regime, which has outlived its day... and in this way to cover up the transformation of the front line city into a NATO military base."

SURPRISE VISIT

'SPEAKING FOR HIMSELF,' SAYS THOMPSON

Hitler, Mussolini Idolized by Sacred Deputy Chief

(Times News Services) MONTREAL—A remark by deputy Social Credit leader Real Caouette that Mussolini and Hitler were his political idols touched off a flap across the country today.

Mr. Caouette's Sacred cohorts were obviously embarrassed; other political leaders wasted no time in jumping on the statement.

In an article by Helen Pilote

in the current issue of Le Magazine McLean, Mr. Caouette was asked:

"Who are your political heroes of history?"

He replied "Mussolini and Hitler," and added:

"Fascism, like socialism and communism, is a dictatorship. Social Credit seeks the liberty of the individual. I admire Mussolini's quality as leader and I regret that he was a Fascist. I admire in Hitler his economic reforms and I consider that he brought his people out of misery. I regret that he employed for war instead of for peace the ideas which he had."

In an interview Wednesday after the story had broken Mr. Caouette attempted to tone down his remarks.

Mr. Caouette said that when he refers to Hitler and Mussolini as his political heroes he thinks only of their economic policies during the prewar depression years.

"As for their dictatorial struggles and their racial struggles they have never been an example for me," he added. Mr. Caouette said the magazine did not quote his complete reply to the question.

"During the depression years," he said, "while we in Canada were in economic misery, these men brought prosperity to their countries."

"There is no question for me of admiring their racial policies. The extermination of Jews, for example, was anti-Christian. There is no question of following such policies."

National Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said today that Mr. Caouette was "speaking entirely for himself" when

By Penny Saver

"You know," groaned my friend Linda the other day, "that sun may not have shone very much this summer, but it always managed to catch me with the living room drapes open. I think my chesterfield has faded at least two shades!" "Well," I consoled in my best Penny Saver manner, "I'll see what I can do."

What I've done so far is to find a kit that cleans and recolors your chesterfield (or draperies, lamp shades, canvas lawn furniture, awnings and such things).

First you vacuum thoroughly the material you wish to rejuvenate. Then you dissolve in water, as directed, the package of fabric cleaner contained in the kit. This solution is brushed on material and simply left to dry. But it must be allowed to dry for 36 hours or more before taking the next step, which is to spray on the color.

There are 18 colors to choose from—including several shades of the usual blue, green, red and yellow.

This spray coat does not leave a hard surface on the fabric but penetrates it. It will obscure most stains, fade streaks and water blemishes. And what is more—it resists sun fading, so you won't have to worry about leaving the drapes open!

Kit with fabric cleaner and a 12-ounce pressurized spray can of color sells for $3.95. Manufacturer gives estimate of one to two cans to cover an average upholstered chair. If you have something bigger, there is an economy kit that contains a quart of spray color for $5.60.

As this spray is intended for fabric upholstery rather than vinyl or plastic, company makes another spray which will put a sparkle on your kitchen and dinette sets. This comes in 12 colors which will dry in minutes, not crack, chip or peel and are waterproof.

Price of a 16-ounce spray can is just $2.99.

Call Penny at 392-3131 if you wish to know where I shopped and where I'm sending Linda shopping!

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

DEAR ABBY...

You Struck Him Out, Mom!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My sister has been in the mental hospital for many years. Her brain was damaged at birth and there is no hope for recovery. My husband is ashamed of it and has asked me not to mention it to anyone. Our children are 6 and 8 and he says if they should hear of it we should deny it, as he doesn't want them to know there is insanity in our family. I know he is wrong, but he won't listen to me. Maybe he'll listen to you.

GETTING NOWHERE.

DEAR GETTING: There are few families who have not had (or will not have) a relative with a mental illness. Our minds can suffer a breakdown just like our kidneys, livers or our hearts. A mental patient is as blameless for his condition as a cancer patient. Contact your mental health authorities and ask for printed information. Your husband's ignorance need not be permanent.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband was born he had brothers and sisters who were married and had children of their own. Consequently, my husband is younger than many of his nieces and nephews. One of his nieces is married to a man who is 10 years older than I am, and he insists on calling me "Aunt Mary." He is related to me only through marriage and I resent this "Aunt Mary" business because he emphasizes the "Aunt" when there is a crowd around. I'd rather he called me "Mary." How can I get my point across?

AUNT MARY. DEAR AUNT MARY: Tell him, good-naturedly (when there is a crowd around), "Out of respect for my elders, I really shouldn't correct you in public, but won't you please call me 'Mary'?"

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who is so ignorant all he can talk about is his job? When we sit down for a meal all he talks about is the different people he works with and what happened at the shop that day. I get so bored I could haul off and smack my old man in the mouth. I am 17.

FED-UP BOY. DEAR FED: Who is feeding you, Sonny? If it's your "old man," you had better keep quiet or else leave the table—hungry.

DEAR ABBY: I don't see why a two-year-old child rates space in your column just because she does the Twist. My baby is 10 months old and he can whistle and snap his fingers with both hands. "SOMETHING TO BRAG ABOUT." (Newark, N.J.)

The cake shown here is a good angel cake. You may wish to make your own, or you may prefer, instead, to buy one from some reliable shop. The method of shaping the cake and turning it into a very bouffant skirt for the doll-bride is really very simple, with instructions following. The creamy pineapple-marshmallow mixture used between layers of the split cake, and also to completely cover it, makes sumptuous eating for the guests.

Be sure to choose a doll of the right height to be inserted in the funnel-opening that centres such cakes. This one was given a bridal veil and beaded coronet to top her blonde hair, and a tiny bouquet to carry. The bride's flower girl, should there be one, would delight in having the doll when the party is over.

BRIDAL SHOWER CAKE

Suitable for 7 or 8-inch doll. One large angel cake, 1 can (20 ounces) crushed pineapple, 1 pound marshmallows, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 pint (2½ cups) whipping cream, silver dragees.

Dress the doll above the waist with white satin and lace. Give her a bridal veil and tie a tiny bouquet to one hand. Wrap lower part of body in waxed paper.

Buy or bake and cool a large angel cake—9 to 10 inches in diameter—and place it with the larger surface down. Using a sharp knife, trim off angular edges around the top so that the cake becomes the shape of a bouffant skirt. Split the cake horizontally into three layers.

Drain the pineapple well and measure ¼ cup of the syrup into a saucepan. Add marshmallows; stir and fold over low heat until marshmallows are about half melted. Remove from heat and continue to fold the mixture until it is smooth. Cool. Mix in the drained pineapple and lemon

ORIENT-SCENTED DRAWERS

For sweet-scented lingerie and linens, rub the insides of chests and drawers with cotton batting soaked in oil of lavender, pine or lemon. To be effective, the rubbed surface must be unfinished sanded wood. Repeat the treatment each fall.

Ah, That Daily Bath! What a Way to Relax

Use your daily bath as a helpful. Bath oil is luxurious. A pillow which sticks to the back of the tub is great. However, the main thing is to forget the world for a short interval under the soothing influence of warm water.

You do not have to tell me—I know, the telephone will ring as soon as you get well settled! Anyway, let it ring! They will call back. Even better, get one of those little switches so that you can turn the bell off. At any rate, no great calamity is going to happen in those few minutes.

If you would like to have my relaxing exercise, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 24. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

We know that water is extremely relaxing and healing. Swimming is relaxing and many physical problems are treated with water therapy. For instance, polio victims exercise in water.

Why not, then, take your daily bath as a time for relaxation? This is a little trick I have learned. I cannot always do it, either, but I do whenever I can. I can feel exhausted and relax in a bath for 15 or 20 minutes and feel like a new woman.

IF HE COMES TO UN

JFK Ready To Meet Nikita Again

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy, who once professed a dislike for summit conferences without prior assurances that they would bear fruit, has hinted he would like to confer with Soviet Premier Khrushchev if Khrushchev comes to the United Nations this fall.

At the same time, Kennedy threw a wallop at the self-esteem of Americans, warning that the United States is well behind Russia in the space race and may stay behind for years before catching up and possibly moving ahead by the end of the 1960s.

"Anybody who attempts to suggest that we are not behind misleads the American people," said the president.

"We are well behind but we are making a tremendous effort," Kennedy said in referring to the space race during Wednesday's press conference.

"This country is making a vast effort which is going to be much bigger next year and the years to come and represents a very heavy burden upon us all. But we might as well recognize that we are behind now and we are going to be for awhile."

The United States currently is spending about $2,400,000,000 a year in civilian and $1,500,000,000 a year in military space programs. Kennedy said he didn't know what military advantage Russia may have gained with its superior rockets and ships "but it is very possible that there will develop military significance and it is for that reason that the U.S. military program is being carried on at $1,500,000,000."

Kennedy's reference to Khrushchev came amid rumors that the Soviet leader might attend the fall sessions of the UN. Kennedy said he didn't know whether Khrushchev will make the trip, but "of course, if he

ALGERIA VIOLENCE

Mob Demands Food, Jobs

ALGIERS (UPI)—A howling, screaming mob of more than 3,000 demonstrators swept through Algiers and invaded the government headquarters building today demanding an end to the Evian truce agreements with France which ended Algeria's seven-year-old civil war.

The single cry that rose from thousands of throats was "March 19 to the gallows." March 19, 1962, was the date of the signing of the accords at Evian, France, which ended French rule in Algeria and gave this country its independence.

But the agreement also set up a provisional executive and called for elections within a certain time. It was followed by weeks of struggle among warring political factions while the country's economy fell into chaos.

One of the older demonstrators in today's surge on the building which houses the powers currently administering the country told newsmen:

"We've had enough words. Now we want action. We want bread, we want work and somewhere to live. I spent five years in jail under colonialism and that did not put me in any mood to undergo such disappointments as I have done since July 1."

The mob swept past the scene of the May 13 revolt in Algiers that brought President Charles de Gaulle back to power four years ago and surged into the government building. Police hastily slammed the big glass doors and stood behind them.

They turned back the mob with fire hoses. Other crowds of demonstra-

U.S. Senate Backs Aid For Lumber

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate, by voice vote, today approved a limited program to aid the ailing lumber industry.

The Senate passed a bill to promote the sale of domestically produced lumber—softwood and hardwood—in the United States and abroad through research on lumber production and marketing.

Under the terms of the bill, the commerce department would receive 50 per cent of the gross receipts from the duties collected on lumber, floorings, moldings and ply-

HIGH SCHOOLS CLOSED TO BLOCK VIOLENCE

PANAMA (AP)—The government closed high schools in Panama City today in an effort to prevent the spread of student violence at the University of Panama.

CARRIERS OF POTENTIAL DEATH

Plastic Bottles For Gas Blasted

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Fire authorities warned today that plastic gasoline containers are carriers of potential death and destruction.

Provincial Fire Marshal Basil Nixon appealed for a halt to the manufacture of these "enticing but highly dangerous" bottles.

He told 103 B.C. fire chiefs at their 31st annual fire college that though his department has no control over the manufacture of the plastic containers, every department and hardware store has been asked to take them off their shelves.

Chief Dick Sowden of Richmond told of a 20-month-old boy who pulled a plastic gas container off a shelf. The gas poured over him from a loose cap and a pilot light in the basement of the home where he was set fire to the spilled gas. "The container melted to a mere pancake," said the chief.

"If it had been a metal container some of the liquid would have been kept inside and the fire would not have been as intense."

The youngster burned to death. Assistant chief W. F. Stevenson of Quesnel said the containers look very good but they are highly dangerous.

The chiefs agreed that plastic containers—as well as glass bottles subject to breakage—should be banned as gas containers. The fire marshal, they said, should consider recommending regulations to create approved containers.

Fire Marshal Nixon said this would be difficult in view of the vast areas, including wilderness where gas bottles are carried.

Victim Fleeing To Western Area

BERLIN (UPI)—Communist border guards to-night shot and killed a 19-year-old boy on West Germany territory as he tried to flee to the West.

The incident occurred on the French sector of the border a few hours after Communist East Germany announced appointment of an East German army general as military commander of East Berlin.

The youth, an East German transport policeman, was shot after he was 10 to 15 feet inside West Berlin by three salvos from Communist border police machine pistols, West Berlin police said.

He was picked up by West Berlin firemen but was dead on arrival at a hospital.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt immediately rushed to the scene.

The announcement of appointment of an East German general as commander in Berlin followed Wednesday's abolition by the Russians of the post of Soviet commandant there.

The official East German news agency ADN reported that Maj. Gen. Helmut Poppe was named East Berlin commandant by the East German defence minister, Gen. Heinz Hoffmann.

Poppe will make his headquarters in the Karlshorst area where the Soviet military commandant for East Berlin had his headquarters until the Soviets abolished the post in a surprise move Wednesday.

The East German action was seen by Western observers as another move in a gigantic power play to get Britain, France and the United States out of Berlin and force the West to deal with the East German regime.

HALTED CARRIERS

It came as American troops halted three Soviet armored personnel carriers at the "Checkpoint Charlie" crossing point in the Berlin wall when the Russians refused to accept a U.S. military escort through West Berlin.

After more than a four-hour delay at the crossing point, the Russian vehicles finally proceeded through the American sector to the Soviet war memorial in the British sector for a changing of the guard.

Despite the Soviet commander's refusal to move with a U.S. military escort, he got the escort anyway.

A U.S. military spokesman said a military police sedan followed the three armored carriers from Checkpoint Charlie and then pulled ahead of the column. The spokesman said a West Berlin police escort car then fell in at the rear, so that Western vehicles headed and tailed the column.

WON'T CHANGE

"We are not going to change our long-existing traffic rules in West Berlin to suit the Russians," continued on Page 3

Rocket Fuel Explosion Kills Three

BACCHUS, Utah (AP)—Three men were killed and three injured today when a rocket-fuel curing building blew up at the big Hercules Powder Company missile and rocket complex here.

R. G. Sailer, assistant works manager, said an undetermined number of 40-pound charges of a propellant being developed for use in experimental motors were in the building.

He said no one works in the curing building and the six men killed and injured were delivering the charges from a mixing plant a short distance away.

ALLIES REFUSE RECOGNITION

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and France jointly declared today that Russia cannot abolish four-power occupation rule of Berlin "without the consent of the three powers."

'Occupation Outlived Its Day'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio described as a clumsy trick today Western efforts to continue the four-power command in Berlin.

In a home service commentary, the broadcast said the Russian decision to abolish its commandant marks "a new step toward normalizing the situation in Berlin and strengthening peace in Europe—a step which is more than timely and extremely necessary."

"It is altogether high time to put an end to the remnants of the occupation regime in Germany. If now the American, British and French military commandants try to make a show of the continued existence of a four-power 'kommandatura,' this is only a rather clumsy trick."

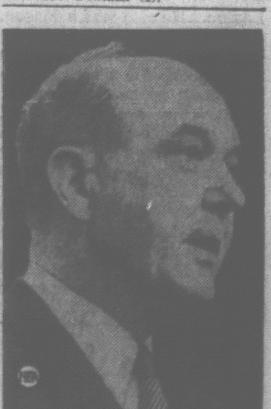

"It is a patent attempt to preserve the occupation regime, which has outlived its day . . . and in this way to cover up the transformation of the front line city into a NATO military base."

'SPEAKING FOR HIMSELF,' SAYS THOMPSON

Hitler, Mussolini Idolized by Sacred Deputy Chief

(Times News Services) MONTREAL—A remark by deputy Social Credit Leader Real Caouette that Mussolini and Hitler were his political idols touched off a flap across the country today.

Mr. Caouette's Sacred cohorts were obviously embarrassed; other political leaders wasted no time in jumping on the statement.

In an article by Helen Pilote

in the current issue of Le Magazine McLean, Mr. Caouette was asked: "Who are your political heroes of history?" He replied "Mussolini and Hitler" and added:

"Fascism, like socialism and communism, is a dictatorship. Social Credit seeks the liberty of the individual. I admire Mussolini's quality as leader and I regret that he was a Fascist. I admire in Hitler his economic reforms and I consider that he brought his people out of misery. I regret that he employed for war instead of for peace the ideas which he had."

In an interview Wednesday after the story had broken Mr. Caouette attempted to tone down his remarks.

Mr. Caouette said that when he refers to Hitler and Mussolini as his political heroes he thinks only of their economic policies during the prewar depression years.

"As for their dictatorial struggles and their racial struggles they have never been an example for me," he added.

Mr. Caouette said the magazine did not quote his complete

Dief Urged to Attend ECM 'Little Summit'

By ALAN HARVEY
LONDON (CP) — Australia and New Zealand today were reported seeking Canadian support for a "little summit" meeting to precede the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers opening Sept. 13.

Specifically, Prime Ministers Menzies of Australia and Holyoake of New Zealand were said to be urging Prime Minister Diefenbaker to move forward his scheduled arrival date in London to facilitate a tripartite meeting.

It was understood here that Diefenbaker planned to reach London Sept. 8. With the usual preference formalities, this would leave little time for any lengthy talks with Menzies and Holyoake.

The Canada-Australia-New Zealand parley would presumably be designed to synchronize strategy on European Common Market discussions expected to dominate the full conference of prime ministers. All three countries are worried about the conditions of British membership of the European Economic Community.

did come, I would hope I would have a chance to talk with him."

Usually Kennedy brushes off all suggestions of another summit encounter such as the one in Vienna more than a year ago which failed to melt the cold war. Kennedy has been saying summit meetings should bear the hope of success and should be held only after successful negotiations at lower levels.

WANTS TO TALK

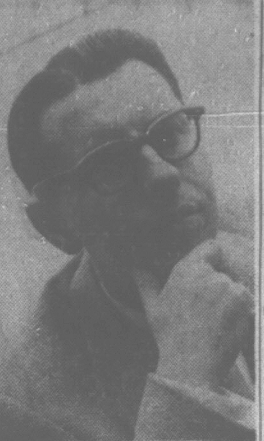

But the alacrity with which he responded to the question of a possible meeting with Khrushchev seemed to indicate the president wants another talk with the Soviet leader on the tense Berlin issue and other troubles.

Closer to home, Kennedy approved a Senate subcommittee's investigation of profits on stockpiling of $8,000,000,000 in strategic materials.

The president said and repeated that extremely large profits were made by the Hanna mining company with little risk to the firm, and he could understand the desire of some witnesses "to limit the investigation by charging it is an attack on President Eisenhower, but I think the Congress ought to do its job."

PET POOCH PICKS UP PURSES

Canny Collie Cashes in on LCB

ALBERNI—Major is a Border Collie who is unique among dogs.

He brings home money to his mistress, Mrs. Florence Morris, Gertrude Street.

One of his first coups occurred when Mrs. Morris's husband was alive. He was feeling unwell, and asked his wife if she would get some brandy. She didn't have any money at the time and was on her way to borrow some from a neighbor when Major walked in the door with a $20 bill in his mouth.

He once came home with a pouch containing $12, has made several $2 hauls, and on occasion has found $5 and $10 bills. He won't touch silver.

Major's latest feat occurred in the last few days.

While out walking with Mrs. Forrester the four-year-old Collie gave a few barks, got orders from Mrs. Forrester to "pick it up", and gave her a cheque for $150.12, made out to an Oriental.

She is still trying to find the owner.
